BIG AIRSHIP TO MAKE A MOONLIGHT LANDING

ASCENSION OF CENTAUR FOR ENDURANCE TEST AT PITTSFIELD.

Special to the Boston American.

PITTSFIELD, Nov. 3.—Tugging and swaying at her anchor ropes, the big balloon Centaur makes the ascension this afternoon from the Aero Club Park.

Captain Homer W. Hedge announced at noon that the idea of making a hunting trip to-day had been abandoned, and the great Centaur makes an endurance trip instead. The plan being to remain in the air for twelve hours and to make a landing by moonlight.

He stated also that he will offer a silver cup for an automobile pursuit of the Centaur at a race the date of which will be announced later.

It had been expected, until Captain Hedge made his announcement, that automobiles would follow the Centaur, and for that sport many automobile enthusiasts, members of the club, many of them with experienced chauffeurs, were early at the enclosure of the park to-day.

Weather conditions were perfect for the ascension, and the crowds of spectators at the park anticipated a splendid view of the big airship as she sailed aloft. The three members of the Aero Club who make the ascent are Capain Hedge, S. M. Butler and Leo Stevens. They have determined going armed for a hunting trip in northern Vermont or in the Adirondacks, but that features of to-day's sport was abandoned, and the aeronauts will simply try to remain in the air as long as possible and to mail their ship as far as she will go.

SAY BROOKLINE CHURCH BLAZE FIREBUG'S WORK

SIX FIREMEN HURT AS FLAMES DAMAGE THE FIRST PARISH CHAPEL $75,000.

An investigation that followed a fire, which destroyed the chapel of the fashionable First Parish Unitarian Church of Brookline early to-day, which did damage estimated at $75,000 and at which six firemen were injured, revealed facts which lead the police to the belief that the blaze was of incendiary origin.

The authorities have taken hold of the matter and are trying to get hold of evidence that will justify an arrest. The chapel was a new structure, and it was the intention of the congregation to make use of it for the first time to-morrow.

Pastor Thinks Fire Was Set.

Leaping past the fighting firemen the flames reached the tower of Pierce Hall, the original church building, and burned it and a part of the roof away. Pierce Hall is the oldest meeting house in Brookline, being erected in 1717.

The Rev. Dr. William H. Lyon, pastor of the church, had this to say:

"There is no doubt in my mind, not the slightest, that the fire was of incendiary origin. There was absolutely nothing of an inflammable character in either of the three buildings. It was only yesterday that the parish house was thoroughly gone over and cleansed out in order that there might be a public inspection of it to-morrow.

"No greasy or oil-soaked rags were left within the building, and how in the world could there have been spontaneous combustion without combustible material? There will be an investigation, and the officers of the church will work in connection with the police and fire department.

Following are those who were hurt:

LIEUTENANT SELDEN ALLEN, overcome by smoke and head cut.

HOSEMAN MICHAEL McDONALD, forefinger on right hand nearly severed.

HOSEMAN PATRICK MAHONEY, deep cuts on right hand.

HOSEMAN WILLIAM BURKE, cut hands and body.

CAPTAIN JOHN HUTCHINS, right eye seriously injured.

LADDERMAN JOHN NORTON, right hand badly cut.

The fire was discovered burning fiercely in the new chapel, which was completed this week, and an alarm turned in at 3 o'clock this morning. Soon after a general alarm called every piece of fire fighting apparatus in Brookline to the scene, and the firemen battled for nearly three hours before they had the fire under control.

Lieutenant Is Hurt.

While directing a company of men in the main part of the church, Lieutenant Selden R. Allen of Combination 1 was injured and burned off to the hospital in an ambulance.

It was only by the most valiant work that the fire fighters were able to save the main edifice. A greater part of the roof was burned and carved into the main auditorium. The beautiful furnishings were destroyed by fire and water.

The new chapel, in which the fire originated, was built by Fire Commissioner Nell, and was to have been occupied for the first time to-morrow. While the origin of the fire is unknown, it was said to-day that small furnaces used to heat the plaster in the unfinished rooms of the chapel may have been responsible for the blaze.

The residence of the pastor, Rev. William H. Lyon, which is located on the opposite corner of Walnut and Warren streets was also threatened when the fire was at its height, but a company of firemen directed its attention to the building and saved it from destruction.

To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day Rev. Mr. Lyon said: "I have no idea what could have caused the fire. The loss will not exceed $50,000, in my opinion, and the property was heavily insured. The church society will undoubtedly rebuild at once. The fire was doubly fortunate at this time, for we expected to move into our new chapel to-morrow."

HOW THE GAME WAS PLAYED

FIRST HALF.

Brown won the toss, and chose the south goal, and kicked off to Lockwood, who brought the ball in to the thirty-yard line. Harvard failed to gain, and Burr punced fifty yards to Dennie, who was downed by Kersberg at the thirty-yard line. Mayhew made ten yards around end, but Brown was penalized twenty yards for holding. The ball was now at the twenty-yard line. A kick by Dennie was blocked.

Brown failed to gain, and Dennie kicked to Osborne, who was downed by Westerveldt at the forty-yard line. Harvard found it hard to gain through the line until now, when Mason made ten yards, following this up with another ten yards, being carried on by Kersberg and Burr.

Lockwood made five yards around Brown's ten-yard line. Harvard on the next play fumbled, and Pryor fell on it for Brown.

Wendell Scores Touchdown.

Curtis for Brown made five yards. Dennie punted to Newhall, who made a fair catch, but was fooled by Brown. For this Brown was penalized ten yards. Mason tried to gain through Brown's line, but failed. Mason made a forward pass to McDonald, who carried the ball to Brown's ten-yard line. Wendell, by two successive rushes through Brown's right guard, made a touchdown.

Burr attempted a goal, but hit the goal post, failing to score. Score—Harvard, 5; Brown, 0.

Brown kicked off to Lockwood, who fumbled and was downed by Pryor at the ten-yard line. Lockwood went around Brown's left end for ten yards. By successive centre rushes Wendell advanced the ball to the thirty-two-yard line. Harvard failed to gain, and Burr punced to Dennie, who made five yards through Brown's left guard, and was downed.

Dennie's Fine Run.

Brown failed to gain and Dennie made a place kick, which, owing to a bad pass, failed to make good. The ball was Harvard's on her twenty-yard line. Wendell made five yards through Brown's left guard. Lockwood, on a fine run around Brown's right end, carried the ball to Brown's forty-yard line. Mayhew made ten yards around Brown's left end. Lockwood made a twenty-yard gain through the big hole in Brown's right tackle.

Burr punted, but the ball went outside at Brown's forty-five yard line. Brown failed to make a centre gain Schwartz made a forward pass to Pryor, who carried the ball to Harvard's fifty-yard line. Mayhew made ten yards around Harvard's left end, but Brown was penalized, the ball now being on Brown's fifty-yard line.

Schwartz made two yards around Harvard's left end. McDonald for Brown made ten yards around Harvard's right end.

Schwartz made a quarterback kick to Swain, who was downed by Kersberg at Harvard's thirty-three-yard line when the first half ended. Score for the first—Harvard, 5; Brown, 0.

SECOND HALF.

Burr, for Harvard, kicked to Mayhew, who was nailed by Kersburg at the ten-yard line. Schwartz kicked to Newhall who was nailed by Pryor at the forty-five yard line. On the next play Lockwood fumbled and Mayhew made twenty yards around Harvard's left end. Curtis carried the ball through the right tackle to Harvard's fifteen-yard line.

He followed this up with an end run, but took the ball to within two yards of Harvard's goal. Curtis took the ball through Harvard's left tackle for a touchdown. Schwartz failed to kick the goal Score—Harvard, 5; Brown, 6.

Harvard Penalized.

Burr kicked off to Brown, but the ball went over the goal line. Harvard was penalized five yards for offside and Burr kicked off again and again the ball went outside the goal line.

Brown kicked off from her fifteen-yard line, but the ball went outside at middield. Swain kicked off again from the same place. Osborne caught it at the forty-five-yard line and carried it to Brown's fifty-yard line. Harvard tried a forward pass, but failed to work it, and the ball was Brown's at midfield. Mayhew made five yards around Harvard's left end, but Brown was penalized ten yards for holding.

On a fake kick Schwartz made fifteen yards, and the ball was now on Brown's fifty-three-yard line. Schwartz punted to Swain, who caught the ball at Harvard's forty-yard line and carried it to Brown's forty-seven-yard line.

By successive end runs the ball was carried to Brown's twenty-yard line. Lockwood making good gains. At the ten-yard line Lockwood tried to gain through Brown's right, tackle, but Brown put up too strong a defence. Harvard losing the ball. Curtis made two five-yard gains around Harvard's right end.

Brown failed to gain. Schwartz kicked to Burr, who caught the ball on the forty-five-yard line and carried it to Brown's thirty-yard line when he went outside. On the next play Burr fumbled and Lockwood fell on the ball. Burr punted to Schwartz, who was downed by Kersberg at Harvard's ten-yard line.

Mayhew dodged through the holes in Harvard's left end for twenty yards. McDonald made five yards through Harvard's centre. Curtis made seven yards through Harvard's left tackle, advancing the ball to Harvard's fifty-yard line. Brown was penalized twenty yards for holding. Mayhew went around Harvard's right end for fifteen yards dodging skilfully through the next play Burr fumbled and Lockwood fell on the ball. Burr punted to Schwartz, who was downed by Kersberg at Harvard's ten-yard line.

Mayhew dodged through the holes in Harvard's left end for twenty yards. McDonald made five yards through Harvard's centre. Curtis made seven yards through Harvard's left tackle, advancing the ball to Harvard's fifty-yard line. Brown was penalized twenty yards for holding. Mayhew went around Harvard's right end for fifteen yards dodging skilfully through

FINAL SCORE—Harvard, 9; Brown, 5

Providence Boys Hold the Crimson Team Throughout the Game and Harvard Won Only in Last Few Minutes of Play.

THE STADIUM, Soldiers Field, Cambridge, Nov. 3.—Harvard's first big local gridiron scrap was the magnet which drew the thousands of Crimson sympathizers to the chosen spot to observe what would happen to the Brown team which came up from Providence loudly proclaiming that the sons of John Harvard were doomed to defeat.

It was true that the Brunions had a strong aggregation of footballists, and it was the most envith the pigskin fighters to encourage them to down the crimsongarbed knights led by Captain Foster.

After the setback a week ago, when the Bear eleven was only beaten by a duke score, the members of the team were in no mood to stand any tampering with their prospects of getting a substantial victory, which was evident from the strenuous way they got into the game from the time of the first whistle.

It was one of the strongest lineups that Harvard could muster to face a team, but still there were a few of the regulars out of the game.

The coaches looked for a hard contest, as Brown was credited with having one of the best teams which ever represented the college, and her followers made up the most optimistic band which had been seen in the Stadium this season.

The Harvard section was full of life, the new songs and cheers being rendered with grand effect, and it was the first time that the new score board was worked, which aided the spectators in keeping closer tabs on the details of the game itself.

Foster was not put in, owing to injury to his knee. The new Harvard football songs, "The Gridiron King" and "A Battle Song," were tried out for the first time, with the assistance of a band. Brown also brought a band and about 5,000 enthusiastic rooters, swelling the attendance to 15,000.

CASE AGAINST KETTERER'S IS DISMISSED

The Board of Excise Commissioners dismissed to-day the complaint of the police of Station 1, Hanover street, against Ketterer's Hotel, Nos. 168 to 172 Canal street. Captain Kimball's men had complained that on Sundays home fide meals were not served with all the drinks served at Ketterer's.

"Charges not sustained," says Chairman Ezra H. Baker for the Excise Board.

"No comment," said Police Commissioner O'Meara. "I made the complaint in compliance with the law; that is all."

SUMMONSES IN FAIRBANK CASE ISSUED

The charges against Wilson H. Fairbank of Warren, former State Senator, chairman of the Massachusetts Commission to last year's Lewis and Clarke Exposition at Portland, Ore., and now of the Jamestown, Va., exposition, made by James M. Perkins, the young attorney who was secretary of the Oregon Commission, will be presented on Monday to the Suffolk County Grand Jury by Michael J. Dwyer of District Attorney Morton's office.

Summonses were issued to-day for Mr. Perkins, Miss Ethel Hich, who acted as stenographer to the Massachusetts Commission at Portland's State Auditor Henry E. Turner, Maiden and State Treasurer Arthur B. Chapin of Holyoke. All will go before the Grand Jury on Monday.

Fairbank, it has been charged by Mr. Perkins, required the stenographer, Miss Hich, to sign the name of an Oregon transportation company to a false voucher in the amount of $72.

Secretary Perkins made affidavit to his charges, which were thereupon and thereafter made part of on the stump by John R. Mecan. Fairbank yesterday brought a slander suit against Mecan. Secretary Perkins for $50,000. On the stump last night, Mr. Mecan, speaking in public said he could report at Worcester whether the slander suit was brought, charging instead it as a "scramble campaign bluff."

Mr. Perkins declares that Governor Guild wanted an investigation of his Fairbank charges held up until after election, and that Governor Guild, pressed for immediate action, demanded of him: "Are you with me, or against me? Do you want to see Moran elected?"

The most sensational incident connected with the Fairbank charges was an admission by State Auditor Turner on Tuesday of this week that on October 4 M. Fairbank had been allowed access to the Oregon vouchers on file at the State House, and that Mr. Fairbank then and there found one voucher amounting to $77.80, and was allowed to correct this "error" by turning in his check for $72.80, which went to the State Treasurer. The vouchers had been filed eight months before in February.

BATTLESHIP VIRGINIA INJURED IN COLLISION

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 3.—The battleship Virginia, passing up to the Norfolk Navy Yard to-day, was rammed on the starboard quarter by the old Dominion steamship Monroe, coming in from New York.

The vessels came together with considerable force, resulting in the scarring of the battleship and displacing of some guns and fixtures. The stem and several bow plates of the Monroe were stove in.

Both vessels were steaming slowly in the river, the Virginia leading. The latter suddenly came almost to a standstill, and the Monroe could not be stopped in time to avoid the collision, although her engines were reversed.

Nothing official has been given out from either ship regarding the collision, but from the action of the Virginia before the collision it seems certain that the vessel's machinery became disarranged, or else signals to the engine room were wrongfully given or misinterpreted.

POLICEMAN KILLS SELF IN MORGUE

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 3.—Patrolman Hanley, a policeman, committed suicide in a strange way here yesterday. He walked into the morgue and, after a brief conversation with the man in charge, put a revolver to his head and pulled the trigger. Death was instantaneous. Ill-health is given as the cause.

HOW THE UNIONS ARE ARRAYED AGAINST GUILD AND DRAPER

LABOR WILL MAKE ITS STRENGTH FELT AT POLLS

Wage Earners Determined to Punish Men Who Have Betrayed Their Interests—Partial List of Unions Which Have Voted to Enter the Political Campaign—Stirred to Greatest Activity Against Eben S. Draper and Led by State Federation.

NEVER before in a State campaign have the wage earners been so determined to punish the men who have betrayed their interests.

The action of the American Federation of Labor in advising union men to go into politics has been taken up in Massachusetts in a way that threatens to upset the calculations of the gentlemen who have for so long a time looked upon the old parties as their personal property. Labor is on trial.

As an evidence of the extent to which this movement has gone, the BOSTON AMERICAN prints herewith the names of some of the labor unions which have pledged themselves to work at the polls for the defeat of Eben S. Draper, who was characterized by the State Branch of the American Federation of Labor as "the most bitter foe to organized labor in all the annals of unionism."

Curtis Guild, Jr., who is backed by the same men that back Draper, is also recognized by the unions as a man whose actions have shown him to be likewise a man not in sympathy with the wage earners.

This list is necessarily incomplete. Many, probably scores of unions, have taken some action and have not published it.

No newspaper except the BOSTON AMERICAN has printed the resolutions of these various unions, and therefore this newspaper has been obliged to rely upon the good offices of men in the unions, who have supplied it with information. The information was supplied to this newspaper voluntarily, and, naturally, many unions which have acted are not included in the list.

Federation of Labor's Condemnation of Draper

Following is the resolution condemning Eben S. Draper, adopted by the State Branch, American Federation of Labor, at the convention held in Lawrence last month:

Resolved, That it is the united sentiment of the Massachusetts State Branch of the American Federation of Labor, that the hour has struck when in self defence of its organized life, organized labor must now stand shoulder to shoulder in defence of its sacred rights:

Whereas, Eben S. Draper of Hopedale has been nominated for Lieutenant-Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, it is the united sentiment of this convention that the union men of this State should exert every effort to defeat the said Draper at the coming election.

In all the annals of unionism there never appeared a more bitter foe to organized labor than Eben S. Draper, as shown by his acts in the past, and it is the opinion of all that the condition of affairs as they exist in Hopedale is a blot upon our country and its Constitution; and the executive council is hereby directed to take immediate steps to secure the defeat for Lieutenant-Governor of Eben S. Draper.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES LABOR COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

The advisory board of Bricklayers' Union No. 3 and the Masons' Union No. 9, have adopted a working agreement and system that has been adopted by the International and improved by conditions in our industry that an exchange of the working cards of each organization be entered into between the O. P. I. A. and the B. & M. I. U., and it is for her record intended.

That—That members of either organization shall be recognized and entitled to work in jurisdiction of a subordinate union of the O. P. I. A. and the B. & M. I. U., upon presentation of a paid up work ing card (current quarter) and upon payment of dues during period of employment.

Resolved—That members of either organization working under the exchange card provided herein mentioned, shall conform to the laws and working rules of the union in the jurisdiction where he is working.

Further, it is to be further understood that members of either organization working under the exchange card system shall not be entitled to any local or international benefit of a financial nature unless agreed to by the union in the jurisdiction of which he is working.

Both Bricklayers' Union No. 3 and Stone Masons' Union No. 9 are considering affiliating with the Boston Central Labor Union. The bricklayers will act on the matter at next Monday night's meeting and the stone masons next Thursday night.

CARPENTERS' DEMAND.

Although the official vote does not expire until next Tuesday afternoon, a poll of thirty of the thirty-four unions and branches of the Carpenters' District Council has already shown a vote of 1,200 to 60 in favor of the referendum proposal [illegible] that forty-five cents an hour and the Saturday half-holiday the year round be included in the requests for the 1907 agreement with the master carpenters, which expires in May.

The Master Carpenters' Association will be notified of the result immediately, as the annual contract calls for six months' notice of any desire to change the terms by either side.

C. L. U. MEETING.

To-morrow's meeting of the Boston Central Labor Union promises to be the most interesting that has been held for some time. The status of those building trades which are not affiliated with the Building Trades Section of the Central Labor Union will be decided, and other important matters transacted.

LABOR NOTES.

The Boston Painters' District Council meets tomorrow afternoon at Wells Memorial building.

The Boilermakers Union expects International President N. J. Fitzhenry to be present at its next meeting, Sunday, November 18.

The Lynn Bartenders Union will hold its second social this Tuesday night in Odd Fellows' Hall, Lynn.

General Team Drivers' Union No. 25 holds an important meeting to-morrow afternoon in Brotherhood of Trade and Allston streets.

HARVARD STUDENTS PLAN TRIPS HOME TO VOTE ON TUESDAY

Harvard students are intensely interested in Tuesday elections in New York and Massachusetts, and nearly all of them who live in either State are leaving to-day for home to cast their votes. The students are especially interested in the New York election. It is expected that between 250 and 300 men will leave Cambridge to-day and to-morrow for New York to register their votes at the polls Tuesday morning.

The campaign managers in New York are straining themselves to get every student vote. Telegrams and letters have been pouring into the institution all week urging them to return.

HOT FIGHT WAGED IN WARD 17 BY LEAGUE CANDIDATE

The Common Council contest in Ward 17 is waxing warm, there being eleven candidates in the field for the three seats to which this district is entitled. The Independence League has become prominent in this connection, as Thomas F. Phelan, its secretary, who last year polled over 800 votes, is making a strenuous fight, in which he is backed by many who recognize in him a man actively interested in their behalf.

Cooperating with Mr. Phelan, John J. Connors and John W. Rommessen, who together represent all sections of the ward, have established a platform, in which they pledge themselves, if elected, to secure a gymnasium and playgrounds, municipal lighting, local ward offices and other improvements for Ward 17. These candidates have been indorsed by the leading clubs in that section, including the Washington Club, Hebrew Club, Independence League, Southampton Association and Odd Fellows' A. A.

NEW ENGINE WILL BE CARRIED IN A CAR

DETROIT, Nov. 3.—A new type of engine calculated to do away with the locomotive entirely and combine the motive power of steam roads to a small compartment in a car is being tried by the Michigan Central Railroad. The saving by the use of gasoline, kerosene or alcohol, either of which may be used, will be 50 per cent. There will be no noise, no smoke and no odor.

May Phelps Says She Is Well and Happy and Does Not Want to Leave Holy Ghost and Us Society

THE BOSTON AMERICAN FINDS GIRL HIDDEN BY SHILOH ELDERS

She Makes Statement for American in Which She Declares She Loves Her Life There and Stays of Her Own Free Will.

Miss May Phelps, the Shiloh girl for whom her mother, Mrs. Mary Phelps of Durham, Me., has been looking, and who, the latter declared, was held a prisoner by the Holy Ghost and Us Society, has been found by the BOSTON AMERICAN. She is with friends in Milton. She told her story freely to a representative of this newspaper. It follows:

By May Phelps.

I AM alive and in perfect health, the best that I have enjoyed for years, and I am sure that all will agree that I have a perfect understanding of myself and my situation when I have told my story.

I was born in Parkersburg, W. Va., about thirty-two years ago, afterward lived in Kansas City, and about seven years ago came East with my sister, and have since been attached to the work at Shiloh, which I love dearly. I expect to remain in the work for the balance of my life.

I am not held a prisoner, and I am not over-induced by any one. Whatever course I have been pursuing was of my own choice, under the direction of God.

Instead of being coerced by those around me I have been in every way assisted by them, and befriended while pursuing my own course of duty as it has been presented to me.

I repeat, that my friends in Shiloh and in Boston have merely extended to me the helping hand instead of influencing me.

The influences have been from without and they have been adverse to my wishes. I have in a measure accepted myself. I have had good opportunity to experience the pleasurable difference between the world on the one side and my chosen field upon the other.

"Mother Is Misled."

I am impelled to speak of my mother at this point. She is a good woman and mother, but has been misled in regard to Shiloh, partly by false reports and partly through the suggestions of outsiders.

She lived near Shiloh, and I always visited her and often remained with her over night, and took an interest in those things that interested me, and my attitude became such that I had to choose between my chosen walk in life in a practical work and going back into the world.

My mother even went to the length of, as to threaten, and that was the deciding point with me. She said that unless I left Shiloh she would appeal to the law and have me torn away from the people and the work I loved.

Being of age, I suppose that I have the right to the pursuit of happiness and the worship of God that is accorded in the Constitution of the United States since that I should not worship God in my own way is responsible for the unnatural estrangement between us, and there is no other reason known to me.

I love Shiloh and its teachings. Shiloh has been a mother and a protector, and the life there is such as I love and as any God-loving person should love, and my whole heart is in the work.

"In Keeping of God."

I never had a fleeting desire to leave it. I am in the keeping of God, and it seems to be His will that I should remain at Shiloh. That is sufficient for me.

I wish to remain with Shiloh people and prepare myself for the spread of the work. I hope to preach the Gospel to the ends of the earth if necessary, and my life efforts are now bent toward such preparation. My heart and soul is given to it, and it is cruel for even my relatives to attempt to dissuade me from this, my very life.

It has been said that we were tortured and starved at Shiloh. Such statements are ridiculous. Say to the world for me that we have all that we need, all the food, the clothing, the education that we need and that our associations are the most pleasant possible. Only my mother could appreciate more clearly how I feel. She is a good mother heart, but it is not in accord with my best good.

Say to the world that I am perfectly happy and have been for the six or seven years that I have dwelt with the Shiloh people.

My health is marvellous and has been so for four years. When I went to Shiloh I was ill. I was a physical wreck. But for the last four years my health has improved wonderfully.

Is Her Life Work.

That my mother should threaten me if I did not leave Shiloh gave me great pain. That she should persist in her efforts to remove me from my path of duty forms a sad chapter. It would be so much better if she could understand that this is my vocation. I desire to assist in the spreading of our gospel. As far as possible I have so planned my life, always subject to wiser direction and the will of God.

They speak of sickness at Shiloh. It prevails everywhere. True, my sister was ill with useful suffering. It was the will of God and not brought about by any human agency or influence. I am led to know that she is recovering and will be restored.

Meanwhile there have been marvellous cures at Shiloh. Colds yield immediately to the faith of the people. Serious maladies give way. Consumption is cured, old and young are benefited in health and there are most wonderful restorations to health are recorded regularly.

I am asked what are my diversion is. I have a little spare time from my studies and duties and I draw and paint in an amateur way, and some think I do it very well for my limited knowledge of art.

Secluded by Own Wish.

I have been in Massachusetts for a little time and have endeavored to avoid those who sought to find me. It has been very easy to avoid such, because I had staunch friends upon every hand, such friends as can hardly be found, I fear, outside of the "faith."

Whatever has occurred in the way of concealment of myself was by my own choice. Surely I am free to go and come as I choose, and I have preferred to remain in seclusion while the inquiry for me was made.

I think it quite unjust that the authorities in Maine should go to such lengths, and I am sure that the authorities in Boston and vicinity need not and will not take such trouble.

8 OF FARLEY'S AUTO STRIKE-BREAKERS GONE

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Taking advantage of a lull in the vigilance of the armed men employed by Strike-Breaker Farley, eight more of two hundred employed by the strike breaker to take the place of the striking chauffeurs of the Transportation Company, now on strike, escaped to-day from the garage in which they have been imprisoned since Monday. The windows of the top floor are all barred, and Strike-Breaker Farley's armed men have been on duty to see that none of the men escaped.

About six o'clock this morning, while the strike-breaker's guards were at breakfast, the men decided to escape. They broke the bars of a rear window, and, climbing to the sill, found that they had a drop of sixteen feet. One by one the men dropped to the roof of the next building. By the time the guards got back from breakfast eight of the men had gone.

On the roof below the escaping men found that they had another drop to make—this time one of twenty feet. The men, determined not to be captured and brought back, made the long drop. One of them, Daniel Stevens, tells an interesting story of Strike-Breaker Farley's methods.

"Ever since Monday," Stevens told a reporter, "our meals have been brought to us, and while we were treated all right, there were several of us who objected to the imprisonment and protested. Our appeals and protests were laughed at by the guards, who were armed with six-shooters and long clubs. Of the two hundred men hired by Farley at $2.50 a day, there is not more than a score that know how to handle a machine.

"Several of us during the last two days got together and decided to make our escape. We met in little groups and discussed our plans, but whenever the guards saw us the groups were scattered. This morning early we decided to resort to desperate measures, and the escape was planned."

ROOT'S ATTACK TURNS MANY TO HEARST

Since the publication of Secretary Root's speech attacking Mr. Hearst, the BOSTON AMERICAN has received scores of letters from persons who were angry because of the unfairness and injustice of that attack. Many persons have called at the office of this newspaper to express their indignation, and others, including several clergymen, have called up the editor on the telephone for the same purpose.

It is impossible to print all the many kind expressions that have come to this newspaper. The following, from two widely different sources, may be taken as fairly indicative of the variously expressed opinions:

From Rev. Roland D. Sawyer, pastor of the Ward Hill Church, Haverhill, Mass.

WHO IS THE DEMAGOGUE IN THE CASE.

The Parsonage, Ward Hill, Mass., November 2, 1906.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Root last night in Lee frenzied shrieks says the country is in danger and its institutions menaced by the election of Hearst as Governor.

May I say that sober-minded citizens will see in the election of any man as a Governor no such danger to our institutions, as there is in the President of these United States throwing off the dignity and self-restraint supposed to be attached to his position, stooping to mingle in an independent State politics, and commissioning a cabinet officer to a dirty mud-slinging attack on a private citizen's character. Roosevelt's friends will excuse it on the ground of "his everlasting impulsiveness," but the time will come when bearing with that impulsiveness will cease to be a virtue.

I should like to see Nathan Straus's letter and Roosevelt's side by side, that fair-minded men might choose between the politician and the philanthropist.

(Rev.) ROLAND D. SAWYER.

John E. Miles of Plymouth, Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in Massachusetts, and one of the best known and most highly respected trades union men in the State, said to-day:

"I have been a Republican in the past and a great believer in President Roosevelt, but I am no longer a Republican or a Roosevelt man. Secretary Root's speech, in which he attacked Mr. Hearst in such an unfair and unjustifiable manner, has changed me. My blood boiled when I read it. Henceforth I am a Hearst man. I believe there are thousands of workingmen in the United States who were made angry by this attack, just as I was, and who will no longer vote the Republican ticket."

DRAPER IS BUYING UP THE NEWSPAPERS

How Draper Is Spending Money Made by Exploiting Non-Union Labor

HIRING THEM TO PRINT HIS DEFENCE AS STRAIGHT NEWS MATTER.

LYNN, Nov. 2.—The newspapers of this city print as bona fide news matter an article from the Milford Daily News, which is described as a Democratic newspaper, in which the labor conditions in Hopedale are defended, and an attack is made upon W. R. Hearst and the BOSTON AMERICAN. Although this matter appears as news, it is obviously paid for, because it is in identical form in the various newspapers, and the headlines and reading matter are the same, word for word.

When the above dispatch was received from Lynn, the BOSTON AMERICAN made inquiries in other towns in Massachusetts and found that in every one of them the same matter, obviously paid for by Eben S. Draper and masquerading as real news matter was being printed in such newspapers as were willing to prostitute their news columns.

Mr. Draper, in his desperation, has resorted to the same trick that the Gas Trust played last year, when it caused bogus dispatches to be printed as news matter in newspapers throughout the State.

The fraud at that time was exposed and denounced by the Springfield Republican, and the Gas Trust failed to accomplish its purpose.

Mr. Draper, in hiring newspapers to print this matter as genuine news, is doing his share to corrupt the newspapers. He is spending for this purpose money he has made by exploiting cheap, non-union labor.

The matter which Mr. Draper is hiring printed throughout the State consists of a defence of his town of Hopedale written by William D. Leahy, who manages Mr. Draper's Milford newspaper and who masquerades under the name of Democrat.

The fact that Milford adjoins Hopedale is cited as proof of the truth of Leahy's statements.

In order that there may be no misunderstanding on this point as to what the working men of Milford think about Hopedale, the BOSTON AMERICAN print herewith the resolutions which were adopted unanimously by the Milford Central Labor Union, representing the various labor organizations in Milford:

"Resolved, That we, the delegates of the Milford Central Labor Union, do hereby condemn the candidacy of Eben S. Draper of Hopedale for Lieutenant-Governor, and most heartily indorse the candidacy of E. Gerry Brown for the same position.

"Whereas, Eben S. Draper is and has proved himself the worst foe to organized labor in Massachusetts, and by trickery and opposition disrupted the Moulders' and Machinists' Unions, and the Draper Company, of which he is an honored member, is affiliated with the Parry-Post combine, which uses the spotter system to learn the doings of union meetings, therefore, be it further

"Resolved, That we use every honorable means in our power to defeat him at the polls; and be it further

"Resolved, That we combine our united effort with organized labor of this State to bring about the election of E. Gerry Brown of Brockton, whom we know to be an honest, sincere friend of labor, a man who has for years helped to fight the battles of union men against oppression; and be it again further

"Resolved, That we heartily indorse the candidacy of John B. Moran for Governor and pledge ourselves to give him our hearty support."

SHILOH IN PANIC CALL BACK "ELIJAH"

Special to the Boston American.

LEWISTON, Me., Nov. 2.—Thoroughly alarmed by the vigorous action of County Attorney Ralph W. Crockett, who has vowed with the approval and backing of Governor Cobb, to banish the "Holy Ghosters" from Maine, Leader George Jewell has lost sent an urgent appeal half the length of the world to "Elijah" Sandford, who is in Jerusalem, to hurry back to save Shiloh from extermination.

"Crockett has reached Shiloh threat ened as never before," Governor Cobb is personally moved against us. Hurry back."

Such is the substance of the frantic message which Leader Jewell dispatched to Jerusalem, according to a Shilohite high in the councils of the "Holy Ghosters." It speaks eloquently of the apprehension which has existed at Shiloh since Maine's latest move against them began. Not satisfied with the County Attorney's probe into Shiloh's affairs Agent F. N. Perry of Portland, head of the Maine Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, has expressed a determination to delve into the existing conditions at Shiloh. He will visit the settlement next Monday under the protection of the law.

Owing to the hostility expressed against Agent Perry and threatened opposition if he attempts to enter Shiloh's domains, he has applied for protection. If cruelty is found, the "Holy Ghosters" will also have to face prosecution by his society.

"If I find any evidence of cruelty or inhumanity I will certainly take action against the Shilohites," declared Agent Perry to the BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "I am doing there personally on Monday and will force my way into every nook and corner in the place. I will report what I do to Governor Cobb and my society will also go up to Governor Cobb personally. I defy the 'Holy Ghost' society to hamper me.

Our agent in Lewiston, Mr. George A. Allen, investigated Shiloh only this week before the State took action and my investigation is the result of his report. Agent Allen, according to his report, found that conditions at Shiloh are deplorable and really demand radical measures. I shall go beneath the surface and shall be prepared to meet any offensive action by force."

FIERCE BATTLE WITH STORM; 32 MEN SAVED

With her flag at half-mast and showing from stem to stern the effect of a hard battle with the sea, the Plant liner Halifax steamed into port here early to-day, thirty-six hours late, from Halifax, N. S. Captain Ellis of the Halifax declares that the vessel had ploughed her way through the fiercest storm and the highest sea she has experienced in a long time. On last Thursday Ship's Carpenter John McLean was washed overboard and lost.

Thirty-three persons came on the Halifax from Nova Scotia and thirty-two shipwrecked fishermen, the latter being part of the Gloucester schooner Lewis H. Giles, who were sent here by the United States consul at Halifax. The Giles was wrecked on a rock in the Bay of Isles, between Newfoundland and Labrador, one week ago yesterday. Captain H. R. Arseneau and his crew of thirty-one men clambered on the rock just as the schooner slipped back in the seas and sank. They remained on the rock in a fierce storm all that night, and the next day they were taken off by the Halifax and brought safely to Halifax.

"We left Halifax last Wednesday at midnight," said Captain Ellis to a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN, "and had no more than steamed out of port when we ran into a stiff northwesterly gale. It was blowing strong, but not sufficiently so as to cause the members of the crew much concern, so we went ahead.

The wind grew stronger steadily all that night, and by noon on Thursday the wind was blowing at the rate of fully seventy miles an hour and the waves were running like great mountains. The waves began to break over our wheel-house and soon the vessel was ploughing her nose deep into waves almost increasingly.

"Carpenter McLean was last seen at about 12:30 in the afternoon of Thursday. He went with an oil can to do some work. I did not discover his loss until about 5 o'clock, when I sent for him. He could not be found. He had been washed away while going along the deck and in the fury of the storm no cry could be heard.

"At 10 o'clock yesterday morning the storm seemed to be slackening and I ordered half speed ahead. We kept at this rate all day Friday, and last night, the storm abating still more, I ordered full speed ahead, and we came at that rate until we entered the harbor."

The crew of the fishing schooner Lewis H. Giles of Gloucester, which was brought here to-day, consists of Captain H. R. Arseneau, J. Le Bosch, D. Grady, P. Bourot, J. Murphy, L. Dempsey and A. Ross as well as twenty-five fishermen, natives of Newfoundland.

Captain Arseneau says that the experience in the Bay of Isles was the worst he ever had. He says:

"Our vessel sank right before our eyes. We had hoped but a moment too soon. All night long we thirty-two men huddled together on that lonely rock. The wind howled and chilled every one to the bone. It took them three hours to get us aboard the Harlow. We were brought to Halifax, where the United States Consul cared for us and sent us here."

WIDOW OF MAJOR J. B. POND IS DEAD

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The death is announced of Mrs. James B. Pond, widow of Major J. B. Pond, which occurred yesterday at a sanitarium, No. 26 West Sixty-first street. CONSPIRACY WARRANTS OUT FOR FROLIC MEN

In an attempt to bring the twenty-two Chinese who tried to enter this country on the yacht Frolic to trial, Deputy Chief Inspector A. R. Scheel to-day swore out warrants against all of the Chinamen charging them with conspiracy together with the white men for whom warrants were originally issued on this charge. It is asserted that the crime of conspiracy was committed in this district, and the Chinamen will be tried in Boston together with the white men now under arrest.

The Chinamen are now confined in the jail at Providence, at which port the attempt to smuggle them into this country was made several weeks ago. Nine of the aliens have been released on $2,500 bail.

Five white men are also named as conspirators in connection with the case. They are Gregory Phillips, formerly Herbert F. Colby, James B. Linehan, Edward S. L. Jenkins and Alfred Ames. Phillips, said to be a ringleader of the gang, is in London; Colby is missing, Linehan is detained in Canada, and the other two are in the custody of the Federal officers.

12,000 PEOPLE HEAR MORAN IN FLYING TRIPS

Remarkable Demonstration in Boston Wards for Popular Candidate.

A BIG CORRUPTION FUND

Over 12,000 people heard John B. Moran, Democratic and Independence League candidate for Governor at ten rallies held last evening in Boston. Thousands were turned away and the more he came once cheered wildly when Mr. Moran called on them to support Wilson H. Fairbank's $50,000 slander suit with their votes by giving him a signal majority on Tuesday next. He predicted that in spite of everything he would carry the State with a sweeping victory.

Mr. Moran reiterated the interview given to the BOSTON AMERICAN in Worcester that the slander suit of Fairbank was a political bluff, that he would fight his suit and that Fairbank would never get one copper from him, because he said no jury would order him to pay money to Fairbank for telling the truth.

Mr. Moran did not return from Gloucester until near 6 o'clock yesterday. His first rally was scheduled at Medford at 7 o'clock, but he was twenty minutes late in arriving. Medford Opera House was packed with over 1,000 persons and hundreds were outside. James M. Martin presided.

Rivers of Corporation Money.

At this rally Mr. Moran told the voters that the State would be flooded with corporation money on Tuesday in the hope of electing Guild. He said he had no money, but that if the Democratic party did its duty, that with this party, Good Prohibitionists, thousands of Independence Leaguers and from one-third to one-half of the Republican vote, he would run for mayor of Guild on election day. (Applause.)

Mr. Moran repeated his charges that W. H. Fairbank of the Jamestown Commission is guilty of all the charges he has brought against him. Mr. Moran said that Fairbank had not denied these charges. He again demanded that Guild remove this man from the Jamestown Commission.

Continuing, Mr. Moran said: "Every railroad, every gas corporation, every corporation which refuses to give fair compensation for their work, are all combined against my opponent. They will flood the State with money, but I want every voter to go to the booths, spurn the money offer, vote as your conscience dictates and if any one approaches you with money come to the district attorney's office, tell us about it and I promise you he will be taken care of." (Loud applause.)

At the rally in St. Joseph's hall Moran referred to the Republican platform now calling about the differences of voters in the past. "I have wanted to know what Senator Lodge was doing the last six years that he has been in Washington, why he did not raise his voice in protest long ago. He did not, and it was only a bluff, and they if elected they would forget their fine promises."

That Jamestown Fund.

He severely arraigned Governor Guild for allowing one cent of Massachusetts money to go toward the Jamestown exposition, a State where equal rights to all were not respected. He said that as long as Virginia practiced disfranchisement he had no right to the money of the taxpayers of Massachusetts. The colored voters confirmed their applause freely.

To the delight of a large audience in Congress Hall he referred to Governor Guild's work as a governor in the army. He said that Guild was not afraid to fight in Florida, where there were no outlaws, answering Governor Guild's remark that Mr. Moran did not know anything about soldiers. Mr. Moran then referred to Governor Guild's spirited speech of saying "Guild would put himself in the American flag and the Guild State to deliver a patriotic address at the unveiling of the McKinley memorial." (Applause.)

When Mr. Moran left the Quincy House and after completing his address at Medford to 1,500 people, he was whisked away in his auto to Granite Hall, Chelsea. Here he talked to 1,800 people for twenty-six minutes.

Mr. Moran's big Boston meetings included rallies in Faneuil Hall, Concord Hall, Ward 12 warehouse, Music Hall (Ward 20), Ward 20 warehouse, Ward 16 Municipal Building, old Court House (Ward 3), Grey's Hall, South Boston, and Congress Hall, Ward 24.

ASKS OPPONENT TO EXPLAIN VOTE ON BUCKET SHOP BILL

Joshua T. Nowell of Stoneham, citizen candidate for Representative, has issued a circular challenge to his opponent in the field, James A. Jones, the Republican candidate for re-election. Mr. Jones has already served the Thirty-first Middlesex district twice at the General court.

The circular issued by Mr. Nowell asks Mr. Jones to answer four questions to show reason why he should be re-elected. He asks what service Mr. Jones has rendered his constituents that he should be re-elected. He also inquires why Mr. Jones refused to kill the bucket shop bill and why he voted against the expulsion of Frank J. Gethro, who was charged with bribery in connection with the bucket shop bill.

The fourth question is as follows: "Was this utter vote, cast in Gethro's interests solely and a very few others against the public welfare, deliberate, for the purpose of your own protection?"

Mr. Nowell says: "The above questions, if answered fully and to their satisfaction, will enable my constituents to express their support for re-election to a third term."

UTE WARRIOR OF DARTMOUTH TO THE RESCUE

Billie Birdseye, '95, Gave Callahan, on Way to Princeton Game, His Parole.

SHERIDAN, Wyo., Nov. 3.—Had he not found an old college chum among the Utes who are now off the reservation threatening to go on the warpath, James J. Callahan of Arvada, Wyo., might be a sculped corpse instead of in the Black Hills Hotel, the best hotel in the Alma Mater, Dartmouth, play Princeton.

"I'm a prisoner of war on parole," said Callahan on his way through here. "The other morning two cow punchers and myself went out to look at the sunrise. A band of Utes, in war paint, came out of the sage brush and covered us before we could touch a gun. Things looked blue till the most ferocious looking buck in the party sang out: 'Yah there, Mickey Callahan, where are you headed for? I'm Billie Birdseye, '95.' And I'll be durned if it wasn't."

Billie is the son of Chief Kanuapave, who is leading this insurrection. He is also in command, and in line for the old man's job.

"We made terms. I stay neutral.

"As I mounted to ride away Billie pulled two packboards out of his pocket and handed them to me. They were tickets for seats at the game right on the fifty-five yard line.

"Root some for me, Mickey," he said. "I maybe napping a few warehouses myself about the time of the kickoff."

A messenger from the conference between the military and the Utes reports that the conference was still in session when he left, but the Indians were thinking the Indians would agree. It is understood the military offered to make the Utes keep the sage rations during the Winter and promised to take up the matter of allowing them another adding place by next Spring.

DOOGUE, PARKS CHIEF, IS DEAD

William Doogue, superintendent of public grounds, is dead at his home, 116 Dorchester street, Dorchester. Arrangements for the funeral are being made today. Death came to the superintendent at 9 o'clock last night. Ever since last Spring, when he had an attack of pneumonia, he had been failing in health. It was not until this week, however, that death was expected.

Five children born to Mr. and Mrs. Doogue are still living. They are John J., assistant superintendent of the public grounds department, William J., an attorney at the Boston bar; Mrs. Timothy McCarthy of Providence, Mrs. D. H. Sullivan and Mrs. John P. O'Connell of this city.

INDEPENDENTS IN FIGHT TO ELECT WALSH TO SENATE

Physician Who Aided Battle for Reform Makes Strong Campaign in 9th Suffolk.

Dr. John E. Walsh of Ward 24 is giving Alderman Edward J. Bromberg the fight of his life in the Ninth Suffolk senatorial district. Dr. Walsh is the regular Democratic candidate for Senator, and is receiving the support of many independent voters in the district, which comprises Wards 23 and 24. He received a unanimous nomination and has the united backing of his party, while there is considerable dissatisfaction in the Republican ranks.

Dr. Walsh was born in Ward 24, and has lived there all his life. He has been interested in about all of the fights for betterments in the district in recent years and also in the broader movements for reform and relief from oppressive conditions affecting the whole city.

Active in Gas Fight.

He was prominent in the fight for 50-cent gas in Boston, and can justly claim some of the credit for the reduction in prices that was wrung from the Gas Trust.

While in no sense a politician, he is making a telling campaign, appealing to all voters with forceful arguments at rallies and frank statements of his attitude on public questions to all who seek his views.

The district is a close one, the margin depending on the side of the Republican candidate, but Alderman Bromberg has made enemies during his career at City Hall among some of the element that usually vote the Republican ticket.

Loyal to Dorchester.

The personal popularity of Dr. Walsh and the keenly interest he has shown in plans for improving Dorchester will greatly help his chances of election.

COLUMBIA HOOK SWEEPS SWATH

Politics were forgotten by the audience at the Columbia last night when the amateurs appeared. Miss Teresa Sullivan, who hails from Lawrence, in feathers and fine raiment, warbled an Irish-Indian ditty that roused the audience to a state bordering on insanity, but she got away before any damage was done. A young man from Maria pas attempted to sing with one eye on the audience and the other keeping tabs on the book workers. Wilson Maguire, a boy tenor, was given the first prize, a lively pair of pugilistic acrobats, named Evans and Johnston, the second, and James Place, a buck and wingist, the third.

MORAN CHEERS SURPRISE LONG AT TAUNTON

TAUNTON, Nov. 3.—John B. Moran was cheered to the echo at one of the biggest Republican rallies ever held in this city at Odd Fellows' Hall last evening. Ex-Secretary of the Navy John D. Long and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge were the principal speakers. Mr. Long, who was speaking under reference to the Democratic candidate for Governor, and the speaker had to pause in the course of his address several times for the unexpected demonstration displayed the speaker, and it was some time before he resumed his speech. Mr. Long was received on his platform coming to the United States and becoming in a short time citizen of the republic.

"I know the father of John B. Moran," he said, "and the country years ago the ages and settled in Wakefield, where he is one of the most respected Irish-American citizens of the community. He took an active part in the politics of the town, and today his voice is heard at the town meetings, polls business and thrift he raised a large family and two of his sons are now professional men. One of them is the present District Attorney of Suffolk County and the Democratic nominee for Governor."

Then came the applause and the cries of "Hurrah for John B."

2 KILLED BY ENGINES RUSHING TO FIRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Two men were run over and killed by engines answering an alarm of fire from No. 3 City Hall place. The dead men are John Coyle, thirty-six, and Thomas Daly, fifty. The driver of the engines were arrested, and later paroled to await the result of the inquest.

SAVED SAILORS BURNED SHIP

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Nov. 3.—Two men rescued members of the crew of the British steamer Nemea, from St. John, N. B., which was abandoned, on fire, off the Irish coast, were landed here yesterday by the British steamer Vedamore. When the Nemea was 200 miles west of Fastnet in a gale of wind, the condenser broke and the ship was helpless in a heavy sea.

During the storm Captain Shaw and six of the crew were washed overboard, but managed to regain the vessel on a receding wave.

When the Vedamore rescued the crew the steamer was set on fire, in order to avoid the danger of some passing vessel running into her.

WOMEN FLEE AS FLAMES MENACE SHOP

Twenty-five Customers, in Terror, Race Madly for the Street.

NO ONE HURT IN CRUSH

Fire in the basement of the store of A. H. Howe & Sons, shoe dealers at No. 169 Tremont street, shortly after noon to-day, caused a damage of $5,000 and created considerable excitement among some twenty-five women shoppers in the store. It was with the greatest difficulty that the clerks prevented a panic in the mad rush of shoppers to the street. Several got as far as the outer door before they discovered that they were in no danger.

The fire was discovered by F. D. Snyder, one of the clerks, who saw smoke pouring out from behind the show boxes in the rear of the room at the part of the store which faces Mason street.

Reaching the Mason street fire house he gave the alarm. When the apparatus arrived an alarm was ordered sent in from Box 36 by District Chief Grady.

The fire was supposed to have been caused by the blowing out of an electric light fuse. The building is owned by the Walker estate.

HALF MILLION CAMPAIGN FUND TO FIGHT MORAN

Corporations Freely Give Up in Effort to Save Guild and Draper.

FLOOD STATE WITH CASH

One-half million dollars is the amount it will cost the Republicans in the campaign for Guild and Draper, and to raise that amount the corporation fat is to be fried to the limit.

An idea of the cost of the campaign is to be seen from the elaborate Ringling Brothers' style of advertising that is being done with large bill posters, which alone will cost nearly $100,000.

Then there is the advertising in every weekly and daily paper in the country towns and cities abusing Moran and the HOME AMERICAN, which will cost fully $100,000 more, so extensively has the work been carried on.

Yesterday was dough day at the Republican State Committee, and the money was sent out the financial literature to man sent out the financial literature to every town and city, no sum being less than $100, while Boston alone is to be flooded with coin, $30,000 being the gross contribution to the city committees. All the cities received large contributions, Fall River receiving $5,000 and New Bedford, Lowell and Lawrence sums in proportion.

Coin in Place of Guild.

The Governor has refrained from visiting Lowell and Fall River, fearing the opposition of the working people because of the overtime bill and the reward given Judge Dana for defeating it, so that his absence is to be offset by the use of coin.

Last year, when the Republicans were sure of winning they expended $61,287.07, but this year they are going to flood the State; and people who on election day were accustomed to small change are this year passing around bills of large denominations.

Last year Lieutenant-Governor Draper and his two brothers chipped in $23,500 and this year have been obliged to dig down deep in the hope of success, for if that happens they expect to land the governorship next year regardless of all comers.

Governor Guild and family, who put $11,650 into the political pot last year, are also opening the family chest for a final contribution, as after this year, whether he wins or loses, the Governor intends to quit politics.

Cash from Corporations.

Among the contributors last year was Frederick P. Fish, one of the Democrats left who the Republican State Committee says is going to bolt Moran. He gave $250 of his earnings as president of the Bell Telephone Company, and as business has been good this year, it is expected he will raise the amount.

During the past week all the corporations, gas, elevated, street railway, textile, insurance and others, have been tapped for sinews of war, and the response was unanimous.

BROOKLYN REBUKES ROOSEVELT DICTATION

STINGING REPLY TO ROOT'S SPEECH ADOPTED WITH TREMENDOUS ENTHUSIASM.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The mass meeting at Visitation Hall, Red Hook, Brooklyn, which Mr. Hearst addressed last night, adopted the following resolution:

"Whereas, we have read with regret and indignation the speech delivered last night by Secretary of State Elihu Root at Utica, in which he undertook to advise the electors of the Empire State as to the proper authority of the President as to their duty in the matter of voting.

"Whereas, in giving such advice and expressing his opinion upon the Hearst proposition he has made his authority, by reason of his official position, equivalent to that of the President of the United States; therefore be it

"Resolved, That we deem it due the dignity of American citizenship that we should resent this flagrant attempt at Federal dictation to the electorate of this great State, and that we should make known to our servant in Washington our view of his interference. In response to Mr. Root's assertions, I say to you with his authority, we reply:

"We say to you, with the authority of electors of the State of New York, that we desire the election of William R. Hearst and up to the present time the electors of the State of New York have exercised their prerogative, without interference, to pass judgment upon candidates chosen by their representative conventions.

"We say to you with the authority of electors of the State of New York, that we are perfectly competent to judge whether Mr. Hearst is fit for Governor and that in our opinion, instead of being an 'anarchist,' as you are seeking demagogically who is trying to deceive the workingmen of New York by false statements and false promises. Mr. Hearst is the truest friend labor ever had, and can ask for labor support, not upon promises as to what he will do for labor, but upon what he has done.

"We say to you, with the authority of electors of the State of New York, that you would have been better informed as to the character of the service rendered by W. R. Hearst to the people if you had consulted Judge Addison Cammack, the Hon. William H. Moody, who on April 4 last, expressed the obligation of the United States Government to Mr. Hearst for information furnished the law department of the government in connection with the packers' case. Mr. Root said: 'Not long ago through the enterprise of the newspaper of one of New York papers (Mr. Hearst) we discovered much information which tended to show that the great trunk lines running to the South, to the East and to the West from New York city had been giving discrimination in the form of rebates to the Standard Oil Company.' With what I believe was rare self-denial and a high sense of public duty that actuated the Department of Justice, out of which charges have grown against the Standard and against the sugar company, and they are now under consideration by the Grand Jury.

"We say to you, with the authority of electors of the State of New York, that, while we appreciate what you yourself have done for the people, we think you made an unfortunate mistake in choosing as your subject-matter against corporate wrongdoing Elihu Root, who previous to becoming Secretary of State, was the highest-paid servant of the corporations—the man who appeared in behalf of illegal combinations almost brought him within the pale of the criminal law.

"And we further say to you, with the authority of electors of the State of New York, that we think it unbecoming in our servant at Washington to speak to us with the voice of an inferior.

"And we respectfully remind you, with the authority of electors of the State of New York, that interference of this kind in our Congressional fights has in the past resulted in a stinging rebuke."

"VOTE FOR HEARST," W. J. BRYAN WRITES

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Bird S. Coler, borough president of Brooklyn, announced yesterday that he had received the following letter from William J. Bryan:

"My dear Mr. Coler—I am very anxious to see Hearst elected, and would be one of many in New York to help him if I thought an outside speaker would be of assistance. From indications, however, the race will be a close one. If I have any friends there I want them to vote for him. Yours, BRYAN."

COLER LETTER IS AUTHENTIC, SAYS BRYAN

OMAHA, Nov. 3.—William J. Bryan, when shown the extract from his letter indorsing the candidacy of William R. Hearst for the Governorship of New York, made public in New York by Bird S. Coler, said:

"That letter is authentic. I have been writing letters and giving out interviews all through the campaign to the same effect. I have indorsed Mr. Hearst, and I want to see him elected.

"I saw a statement given out yesterday by the Bryan League of New York, in which it was announced that while the league was doing all it could for the rest of the ticket it was opposing the election of Mr. Hearst. I immediately wired protesting against the use of my name by any organization in opposition to Mr. Hearst.

"When his attention was called to the speech of Secretary Root at Utica, in which the Secretary denounced Hearst in unmeasured terms, declaring at the same time that he was expressing the sentiments of President Roosevelt and Mr. Roosevelt's authority, Mr. Bryan said:

"It seems to me that the Republicans in New York must be frightened when they bring the President into the controversy, and especially in the way they have."

Condemn Appointment of Dana and Treatment of Employes at Hope (less) dale.

Action condemning Guild and Draper and indorsing Moran and Brown has been taken by two more labor organizations. They are:

Worcester Iron Molders' Union No. 434.

Stone Masons' Union No. 9.

Worcester Iron Molders.

Resolutions condemning Guild and Draper were unanimously adopted by the Worcester Iron Moulders' Union, No. 434, as follows:

"Whereas, the Republican candidate for Governor has shown by his promotion of Senator Dana to the position of Superior Court Judge that he cares nothing particularly for the feelings of the working masses, who, he must have known, would not approve such action on his part after Dana's vote against the Overtime Bill; and

"Whereas, the Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor has done and is doing all in his power to prevent the workmen in his employ from forming or joining labor unions, so that he may thus obtain as unfair advantage over his competitors and be in a position to deal with his employes individually, instead of collectively, and thus force down the wage scale; and

"Whereas, both the Democratic and Independence League candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor favor the formation of labor unions and are on record as favoring the passage of the Overtime Bill, designed to make it illegal to employ women and children in the mills and factories of this State after 6 p. m.; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we, as citizens of Massachusetts and members of Iron Molders' Union No. 434 of Worcester, Mass., herewith indorse John B. Moran as candidate for Governor, and E. Gerry Brown as candidate for Lieutenant Governor, and we hereby pledge ourselves to aid their cause by every honorable means in our power."

Stone Masons' Union.

John B. Moran and E. Gerry Brown were unanimously indorsed for Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, respectively, at a largely attended meeting of Stone Masons' Union No. 9 in Cooks' Hall, No. 45 Eliot street.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Rolling with impassable seas of ice, deathly cold and impending starvation, Robert E. Peary, commander of the United States Navy, according to word just received from the frozen North, has planted the American colors sixty miles nearer the North Pole than any other explorer ever reached.

The daring Arctic adventurer did not reach the pole—the dream of his life—but he got within 202 miles of it, and then returned to the Labrador coast without the loss of a single member of his party.

The success and safety of the party were learned through a letter received by Herbert L. Bridgman, secretary of the Peary Arctic Club. The letter is brief, but it shows the perils through which the commander and his associates passed in that ice land. One sentence reads:

Dogs as Food.

Returning, ate eight dogs."

Later musk oxen were killed. Presumably they, too, were eaten. One of the supporting crews was found starving, and it is inferred that the members were fed on hot dog and musk ox. This became necessary because the ice had destroyed the food caches.

Much anxiety was recently felt for the safety of Peary and his band. But the explorer's wife, who was spending the time in Maine, never lost hope. On October 25 Mrs. Peary at Portland said:

"I am as sure as I am living this minute that my husband has found the Pole and will soon be home to tell us all about it."

This is Commander Peary's short but graphic letter:

The Explorer's Story.

"Hopedale, Labrador, via Twillingate, N. F., Nov. 2.

"Herbert L. Bridgman—Roosevelt Wintered North coast Grant land, somewhat North Alert. Winter quarters. Went North with sledges February 28, Hecla and Columbia. Delayed by open Winter between 84° and 85°. Beyond 87° six days.

"Gale disrupted ice destroyed cached. Cut off communication with supporting bodies, and drifted due east. Reached 87 degree 6 minutes north latitude, where ice drifting steadily eastward.

"Returning, ate eight dogs. Drifted east ward. Delayed by open water. Reached north coast Greenland in straitened circumstances. Killed musk oxen, and returned along Greenland coast to ship.

"Two supporting parties driven on north coast Greenland. One rescued by me in starving condition. After a week recuperation on Roosevelt sledged it completing north coast Grant Land and reached other land, near 100th meridian.

"Homeward voyage incessant battle with ice, storms and head winds. Roosevelt magnificent ice fighter and sea boat. No deaths or illness in expedition.

(Signed) "PEARY."

TO OPEN WORK BUREAU DEC. 1

At last Governor Guild has obeyed the mandate of the Legislature and will open a free employment bureau, although the bill providing for one passed the Legislature last Winter.

The announcement of the opening is given out before election, but the bureau will not start in business until Dec. 1. In the meantime those out of employment will remain in that condition until the office is ready for business.

HELD IN $2,000 ON BOGUS CHECK CHARGE

Steven C. Lawrence, a distinguished looking man of about forty years, who said he hailed from New York, was held in $2,000 bail for trial to-day by Judge Burke in the Municipal court.

Lawrence was charged with passing a worthless check on J. W. Bradbine, a saloon keeper at the corner of Dorrer and Kay streets.

WHALEBONE GOING TO $15,000 A TON

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Whalebone at $15,000 per ton is the proximate result of the failure of the Davis Strait and Greenland whale fisheries. Dundee whalers have just returned almost empty. They report that hurricanes which packed the narrows with ice prevented them from reaching the fishing grounds.

Poverty Is a Disease

The power of suggestion is now a recognized force in the world of business. Think poverty and it is hard work to get away from it. Think success and you will soon be on the path of attainment. The same law applies to bodily conditions. Allow the mind to dwell on disease, and sickness is hard to shake off. Direct the thoughts toward health, and improvement soon begins when you obey the suggestion to use a successful remedy that promptly dispels all the sickness caused by derangement of the stomach, liver and bowels. These vegetable pills are quick to relieve indigestion, nausea, biliousness, sickheadache, constipation and sleeplessness.

Beecham's Pills

Beecham's Pills cleanse, soothe, tone and strengthen; create appetite, promote digestion, regulate liver and bowels, relieve brain-fag and bring refreshing sleep.

When despondent, blue or discouraged, think health thoughts and remember the suggestion that nothing succeeds like Beecham's Pills when you are suffering with an upset stomach, a bilious attack or sluggish bowels. All's well that ends with Beecham's Pills.

TIGERS WANTED REVENGE

The Lineup.

PRINCETON.		DARTMOUTH.
Magie, c.	r.c.	Pritchard
Herring, l.c.	r.c.	Lentz
Capt. Dillon, l.g.	r.g.	Hinkey
Phillips, c.	c.	Brosse

Harlan, l.h.b.	r.h.b.	Stuart
Ribbon, Miller, r.h.b.	l.h.b.	Bardach
McCormack, f.b.	f.b.	Greenwood

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 3.—The Tigers line up to-day against Dartmouth for a hard struggle. The Hanover boys won out last year, 6 to 0, when they caught the Tigers napping, but such will not be the case to-day. Every man in the Princeton lineup will be there to retrieve last year's defeat, and to do it so decisively that there will be no doubt as to which is the better team this year.

The much-talked-of shift in the lineup was given out this morning. It changed Standerd from tackle to guard and Herring from centre to tackle on the defensive, while on the offensive Phillips shifted with Herring from centre to tackle, while Herring passed the ball. This, it is believed, will add strength to both offence and defence.

AMHERST MET AGGIES' TEAM

The Lineup.

AMHERST.		AGGIES.
Keating, Morton, Le.	r.e.	Bartlett

Hubbard, Curtis, r.h.b.	l.h.b.	Hall
Conlee, f.b.	f.b.	Willis

AMHERST, Nov. 3.—Amherst's eleven, after holding Yale down to two touchdowns last Saturday, met the Agricultural College on Pratt Field this afternoon. Amherst depended upon Captain Hubbard for her punting and showed wonderful aggressiveness and action. Before the game started Hubbard got away with a number of sixty-yard kicks and came booted the ball for seventy-three yards.

During the week Amherst has been having secret practice under the direction of Phil Smith, last year's crack guard. Jack Cates has had the ends and tackles under his wing. There was considerable even money placed on the game, the Aggies' boys having no end of faith in their team.

WATERVILLE, Me., Nov. 3.—The third football game in the Maine intercollegiate series and the second to be played in this city took place this afternoon on the Colby Alumni field. The contestants were Colby and University of Maine. The Maine team arrived this morning, accompanied by 100 students and rooters, many of Colby's best half-backs, did not play, having been declared ineligible by the intercollegiate arbitration Board on account of the one-year residence rule. Hetherington, captain of Colby, was out of the game, having dislocated his collar bone in the contest with Bates two weeks ago.

84 ENTRIES RECEIVED FOR GYMKHANA SPORTS TODAY

BY J. C. KERRISON.

The list of entries for the gymkhana sports of the Bay State Automobile Association to be held on the Newton Athletic grounds this afternoon is by far the greatest that has ever been received for a similar event in this country. The entries total 84, they being divided among 21 fourteen cars. The list is such as will cause quite a lengthy programme, especially when it is remembered that but one car can perform upon the track at any one time, the events being of such a character as to preclude the crowding of the track. Everything is in readiness for the competitions, and there is no question but what the sport will be fast and furious. There will be a great demand for low speed, all cars having a tendency to touch the high spots in their competitions being declared out on the point of exceeding the speed limit. This is indicated by the fact that in three events the speed is limited between eight and twelve miles an hour, while in others speed would be decidedly fatal to all chances of success. The entries include Ralph Conery, who will drive the non-stop Maxwell which arrived in this city from New York last evening; Lucien Tyler, who will drive a similar car; C. W. Kelsey, who will drive a Maxwell speedster; J. A. Dowling, runabout; Dr. J. F. Horsfall, Buick; H. H. Bartlett, gasolene car; J. L. Snow, Peerless; R. R. Ross, Peerless; H. H. Howe, Peerless; Harry J. Murch, Cadillac; Lewis R. Speare, Winton; E. B. Bowen, Pope-Toledo; F. H. Peabody, Ford runabout, and C. L. Dane, Pope-Toledo, and G. H. Kimball, Corbin.

There are eight events in addition to the special prize offered to the driver scoring the largest number of points during the afternoon. This special cup has attracted considerable attention and the majority of entrants have entered every event for the purpose of capturing the specie. H. H. Hawkins, who scored successfully with his Pope-Toledo at Worcester recently, is also determined to try his hand at capturing the trophy. He will find strong competitors in Coburn, Kelsey, Tyler, Ross, Snow, Brown, Dane, Murch and Peabody, who are all undecided that they will be able to capture the first event will be called promptly at 2 o'clock, and it is hoped to get off all the events before darkness calls a halt.

* * *

The 1907 Pope-Toledo arrived in town last evening, it was driven over the road by Herb Lytle, who performed to such advantage in the recent Vanderbilt. The new Pope-Toledo is a striking machine, to say the least, being the best of the many excellent cars that has been turned out by this company. The car has been driven over the road from Toledo, its birthplace, having made stops of greater or less length at the leading cities. It left Hartford at seven o'clock yesterday morning, coming through the snow and slush, stopping for a short time in Springfield and Worcester. It will remain in this city for a week or so, with headquarters at the Dodge Motor Vehicle Co., where it will be used as the official car of the gymkhana sports this afternoon. It is also numbered to the race committee, who will use it as a car.

* * *

The operators, observers, and all who were in any way interested or contributed to the success of the Maxwell car in its recent non-stop performance from this city to Chicago are tendered a complimentary banquet at the headquarters of the Automobile Association by the Maxwell-Briscoe Boston Company this evening.

MURPHY HAS HARDNUT TO CRACK IN CULLEN

When Tommy Murphy faces Dick Cullen in the ring at Chelsea on Tuesday night he will be up against the hardest proposition he has faced in the ring in his career.

The fact that the Harlem featherweight is a natural cyclone, and also that he will meet a boy worthy of his mettle will be especially seasonable to the Hub fans.

Murpy is conceding that there is only he faces a boy of Cullen's stamp, but it was evident to all who saw him whip Kid Goodman so readily, that there is no boy in this section able to cope with Murphy going at his best.

Murphy tackles a boy who simply thrives on the style of battle he puts up. These coming-on tactics which bring the action to an open contest, and of the kind which Cullen says will just suit him. He is no fancy boxer nor hitter, depending on getting out of the way and holding a boy off. Its right into the thickest with him, but he is devoid of proper methods to pursue to get the advantage.

He is now on the Mellody line of mitt pusher, similar in build and with the same amount of shiftiness topped off with a quick thinking head. He is the most particular sort of a trainer, never needing any advice as to his preparation for a contest, as he comes from the camp reported At Nell, the ex welterweight champion, and there is nothing he doesn't know about the game.

In South Africa his great fame as a high-class boxer preceded him, and he was matched to meet Jimmy Britt, then to Barney Malone, the recognized champion of that country. If proved to be a hard struggle, but the knowledge gained by Cullen came to the fore and he won in twenty rounds.

Since his return to the land of the free he engaged in one contest only, against Hock Keyes, the much touted Australian, and Cullen sent him to the ground in five rounds.

A party of local sports, headed by Colonel Johnny Mooney, who have witnessed Cullen's boxing his training at Mike Devereux's physical culture farm, pronounced the Californian to be a dangerous foe for any lightweight in the world to tackle.

In the opening bout of six rounds, Jimmy Dunn of New York and Young Meitrieil of the North End will meet. In the second bout Eddie Rudolph will face Johnny Ahearn of South Boston for six rounds.

The returns of the election in New York and this State will be announced at the ringside.

ROYAL BEN WON FIRST AT AQUEDUCT

Special to the Boston American.

AQUEDUCT RACE TRACK, N. Y., Nov. 23.—August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey Club, has determined to try to win the English Derby, and with that end in view, the entry of six high class colts, the get of the well-known sire, Hastings, was made to-day from the Belmont stud, the Nursery of Kentucky.

This was the first day of the final local race meeting of the year, a two-weeks' stand up for a run until November 15. The very first day the shift to Saratoga, at Saratoga, Lexington, will occur.

The aqueduct handicap, with Ginette, Ryo, Oxford and other late season stars engaged, was the racing fixture for the day, weather was ideal and the track lightning fast.

The Results.

FIRST RACE—Selling; two-year-olds; six furlongs: Royal Ben, 103 (Flynn), 11 to 5 and 1 to 2, won; Cora Price, 99 (L. Musgrave), 10 to 1 and 4 to 5, second; Bonnie, 102 (Odom), 8 to 1 and even, third. Time—1:14 1-5. Flowever, Molwyn, Yorkist, Antrim, Cinderella, Dr. Rice, Sir George, Woolstarlle, Big Store, Ted, Yrarcuse also ran.

SECOND RACE—Washable steeplechase, four-year-olds and up, about two miles: Lama Cloned (the (Pilkington), 5 to 2 and 2 to 5, won; Sandy Hook, 146 (Walker), 8 to 1 and 3 to 1, second; Ben Hur, 146 (Mr. Thomas), 4 to 1 and 1 to 2, third. Time—4:22 3-5. Russell Sage and Orlando also ran.

THIRD RACE—The Creedmore; for two-year-olds; $1,500 added; five furlongs: Delhi (Mr. Dupree), 11 to 5 and 4 to 5, won; Waterbury, 118 (Shaw), 12 to 1 and 4 to 1, second; Gold Bill, 112 (Nutter), 6 to 5 and 2 to 5, third. Time—1:01 1-5. Hermann, Lord Badge, Tom Tod, Toddington also ran.

FOURTH RACE—Rye, Bad News, Oxford.

BRIGGS-KINNEY BOUT A DRAW

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 3.—Steve Kinney of Milwaukee and Jimmy Briggs of Boston fought a ten-round draw, and but for a hard right to the jaw at the gong in the last round which made him stagger, the latter would have been given the decision.

'MIKE TWIN' TO MEET THOMAS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3.—Joe Thomas and Mike "Twin" Sullivan of Boston will be the card for the November fight, under the management of Eddie Graney, if the weight question can be settled. Thomas is willing to sign articles and go to Jack Twin" Sullivan's dodge but for the brother. Thomas can make 142 pounds easily in the East, but Harry Foley says it will be a hard job for him to make more than 145 pounds here, and he would prefer to fight at 145 pounds.

AQUEDUCT ENTRIES.

AQUEDUCT RACE TRACK, Nov. 3.—The entries for Monday's races follow:

KID HERMAN

KID HERMAN, WHO IS TO MEET JOE GANS

DASH WINS ON THE SPEEDWAY

President C. H. Belleden, of the Metropolitan Driving Club, carried off the honors at the matinee yesterday over the Charles River Speedway. With his gelding Dash he started against the heretofore invincible Bert S., in the fast trotting event, and after three hotly contested heats was returned the victor, much to the amusement of those present.

It was the fourth of the Fall series in the silver cup matinees, and the strong hold the sport has on the general public in Greater Boston was shown, as despite the cold wind and snow squalls fully five hundred carriages lined the boulevard, while the sidewalk was filled with as many more on foot.

The wet weather in the past couple of days had left the speedway in such poor shape that the racing was conducted on the upper road. Under the prevailing conditions it was deemed inadvisable to let the horses attempt the racing ordinary, but when the event had been concluded the universal verdict was it was the best day's racing in the series, as many boats it was outside the scope at any except the judges to tell the winners. In fact in a couple of heats the spectators had decided among themselves that the judges were wrong, but later the official decisions announced another the winner.

Where the ten events on the card had been figured it was found that A. Pfaelzer's "King" of the day, as no less than three times had he brought to the wire a blue ribbon winner. The horses he drove were Chief Wilkie, Cognamont and Hurricane Jr., and he had a struggle in the initial heat of the fast pace with the first named, but came home in the hotly contested finish. champion of the pacing brigade Cognamont was compelled to do three times, in the Marchwood, before they gained the laurels.

H. H. Cook handled Billy Ross to the king's taste. In both of the heats he won there was never more than a neck in front of Pender Maid from the start to the finish. It was a particularly pretty contest to witness.

With Nancy Grayson, O. M. Pois sprung a surprise, as he cleaned over cook good pacers as Elmwood, Fred and Alvida. Gibbons had another mount outside of Bert S., in Hermia, and in this instance he was the winner, though in the opening heat Tom Dreer finished first by a head, but was placed last for pacing.

It was a treat to note the clever way Sam Harding teamed the little sidney Dillon Jr. right close to the wire, when with the Hit or Miss and Little Sidney drove from under with a rush, nailing his opponents by a nose in the final trip he made a break in the opening heat in the winner, though first by a head, but was placed last for pacing.

Mothers, Which Do You Love More--Your Children or the Trusts?

BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ISN'T it heartrending the way the household expenses mount up? First one thing and then another, and the money disappears in the most discouraging manner.

Do you know where most of it goes?

Into the yawning grasp of the trusts.

That's where the money goes that ought to be laid away for a rainy day fund.

That's where the money goes that might be used for nourishment as their little, growing bodies need.

That's where the money goes that might be used for extra advantages for your children.

Do you love the trusts better than you do your children and your home? Your husband must love them better than he does you or the children if he votes the ticket that have the Beef Trust to thank for that.

Can you give them all the milk they want? The Milk Trust does its best to keep milk out of dear babies' reach, but the Rubber Trust also keeps the price of leather up, safe and warm in good, whole shoes.

Oh, mothers, for the sake of the children, urge your husbands to think twice ere they vote for the trusts!

There is something infinitely pathetic in a child's worn-out shoe. The little feet that go trot, trot, trot, have, in many cases, a weary road to travel as the years go by. Surely their childhood should be happy.

Think of those tiny feet in their broken shoes, with the bitter cold nipping the pink toes that should be cuddled safe and warm in good, whole shoes.

Oh, mothers, for the sake of the children, urge your husbands to think twice ere they vote for the trusts!

It is the children that count most of all. It is their health and future that must be considered.

They have the right to a good public school education, and you must fight until that right is respected.

And never forget that the great and relentless enemy to your happiness is the Trust in its many forms.

You have only two days to get in your good work.

Beg and coax your husband to vote against the men for whom the Trusts are fighting.

Ten Commandments for the Married Man

By Dorothy Dix

THE fourth commandment of the married man is this:

Thou shalt make of thy wife a partner in thy joys, and thy sorrows, thy hopes and thy plans, and in thy business, and thy purse.

There are three ways in which a man can treat his wife.

He may treat her as if she was a toy.

He may treat her as if she was a slave.

He may treat her as a partner.

The first two ways are forcordained and predestinated to render any marriage a failure. The third way is a gilt-edged guarantee to make every marriage a success.

If every divorce that has ever been obtained since civilization first evolved a method of breaking up an unendurable marriage and getting rid of an unbearable spouse by law instead of by poison was traced to its source it would be found to have originated in the man having adopted the vassal or the doll-baby attitude toward his wife, but nobody ever heard of a couple where a man treated his wife as his equal, and who shared everything, his confidence, his schemes and his money with her, who ever bothered the courts asking to be relieved from each other.

To be just to the American man, it is but fair to say that he seldom treats his wife as if she was a slave.

Now and then you hear of a case in which the woman has to stay at home and drudge, and pinch and economize while her husband fares sayin forth in swell raiment to smoke fine cigars in a club window, or you see a poor, tired, worn-out, washed-out-looking woman trudging along meekly, with a baby and the lunch basket behind a man who stalks in front swinging a cane, but they are isolated instances.

The Real Reason

FEW women in this country have reason to complain that they are overworked or that their husbands monopolize the best of whatever they are able to afford in their living.

On the contrary, the American man is much more apt to treat his wife as if she was a toy, a piece of bric-a-brac, an ornament to be worn with the manstel shelf and looked at and played with when he was in a mood for it and forgotten when he was tired of it.

Our men like to dress their wives in pretty clothes, to indulge their little luxuries, but they do not want to be bothered with them except upon occasions, and this is the bane of the average wife life, and one of the chief causes of the multitude of divorces.

For, after all, a woman is not a toy. She is not a doll baby that you can dress up in silk frocks and set down on a plush sofa and have it wait there harmlessly until you get ready to take it up again.

The woman must have society, she must have amusement, she must have somebody to talk to her and somebody to admire her, and if her husband won't do any of these things there is always somebody else who will.

The most amazing thing on earth is that men forget the other man.

Particularly strange, isn't it, when they have so often been the other man themselves, and made love to a pretty, foolish married woman who was lonesome and bored, and ready to listen to any kind of a serpent in a dress suit that climbed up into the apple tree?

Wives Companions

TO the man who makes his wife his companion this can never happen, because the woman has something to think about, she has something to do, something to plan and hope, and she has been steadied by the simple fact that her husband has treated her as if she was a reasonable human being, with a heart and a brain.

Men don't believe it, but a woman I give them this dead straight tip—there is nothing else in the world that flatters a woman as much as to treat her as if she had some sense.

We have been told so often that we were pretty and angels that we don't care for it, but to be regarded as rational is so new that it still sweeps us off our feet.

Most of the mistakes of wives come from their being treated as playthings. Instead of as intelligent women who have the interest of the family and its success just as much at heart as the husbands have.

Men are forever complaining that their wives are extravagant, but there is a woman to be prudent about her expenditures when she has no idea of what her income is or what it can afford?

Not one woman in ten thousand has the remotest idea of what her husband makes. She knows nothing about his business affairs. She spends what she can get her hands on, and is dissatisfied because she can't get more, because she is being treated like a child, but this would be changed if she was let in on the inside.

Women have a horror of debts. They have an intense desire to "get out" in the world, and if a man instead of curtly refusing his wife money would only explain to her that he has a note coming due that must be paid, or that by reinvesting in their business for a little while so as to put more money in his business he could enlarge his store, or branch out in some other direction, he would find that instead of being a drawback he had gotten the keenest witted and most economical backer in the world in her.

Better Partners

THERE are very few women, no matter how silly and flighty they seem, who do not make the most earnest desire when they marry to help their husbands.

It is up to the man to fan this desire into a flame and to direct it into every there is of real worth in them. If a husband begins his married life right, he will commence from the very first day of the honeymoon to lay responsibilities upon his wife, to make her feel that their future happiness and prosperity depend just as much upon her as they do upon him, that they are partners in the game of life, and must play it together.

No woman who is not an utter fool will fail to respond to such an appeal—and there are not many women who are fools except as they are fools as men make them.

Men excuse themselves for not treating their wives as equals by saying that women know nothing of business, or the affairs that interest men.

Of course they don't, but they can be taught, and a man can bring no more valuable asset to his occupation, no matter what it is, than the contuition of the woman who loves him, and whose love gives her almost occult powers.

"Mother was the finest faro dealer on the whole coast," says Burt Harte in "The Girl of the Golden West in the play. "she could beat father, for father just dealt faro, but mother dealt faro for father."

The partnership plan in matrimony is the only sure winner, for a grown-up man gets tired of playing with a doll baby in a mighty short time, but there's a long, long time in life when he needs the help and sympathy of a wife who is a good comrade.

CARE OF TRUNKS

A GOOD trunk can be saved many a hard knock, or rather many a bad scar, when going on a long journey, by covering with ordinary canvas, not too securely with twine, leaving only the handles of the trunk out.

REMOVE STAINS ON MARBLE

TAKE equal quantities of powdered pumice and chalk, and the weight of both in carbonate of soda. Mix and sift the powder, make into a paste with water, well over the soiled parts. Wash off with soap and water.

* * *

Vegetable refuse, such as potato peelings, cabbage leaves, should be burnt at back of kitchen fire; they burn well, and save coal. If you have fowls boil the peelings and mix with barley meal; they will make a good morning meal for them.

TWO NEAT DRESSES FOR YOUNG MISSES

TWO CHARMING STYLES FOR GIRLS

THESE two pretty styles are for young girls. They are afternoon dresses for early Winter wear.

The first one is made of a warm red cloth, the skirt having two bias folds.

The waist opens over a wide vest of tucked pongee silk; the wide sailor collar is trimmed with bands of cloth. The ruffle at the neck and the cuffs are of white silk embroidered in red.

The buttons are of mother-of-pearl and the girdle of red liberty satin.

Heavy blue pongee in the material used for the other costume. The skirt is laid in plaits and trimmed with two folds of blue and white striped taffeta silk.

The collar is of white with border of the stripes, and bands of this silk trim the waist in bolero effect.

The soft tie is of plain navy blue satin.

What a Woman Thinks of Moran--His Principles, Motives and Aims

By Lillian Ruddick

FIRMLY believing that the world would some day hear of him, I have for years watched with the greatest interest the career of John B. Moran, and I have never wavered in my conviction that this amazing man could do anything, achieve anything; that such men have taken armies and founded dynasties.

In appearance he is agreeable to look upon, magnetic and winning of presence, with a face that is, surely, the face of a man of strong destiny.

The Moran frown is not nearly as savage as it is printed, but the Moran smile is something that must be seen to be appreciated. It is one of those rare, sudden, unexpected and captivating smiles peculiar to some faces habitually serious.

As a public speaker he is convincing. Although possessing a rare gift of eloquence, he nevertheless prefers to employ argument, to appeal to reason rather than to passion. Neither is it his habit to indulge in invective, though when aroused no one can be more scathing.

When the occasion demands, Senator Lodge recommends being "parliamentary and severe." John B. Moran denounces the thing he hates in plain, downright English, with all the force of a nature in which there is something primitive.

Naturally aggressive, and despising a coward, he has always fought in the open against oppression and corruption.

In principle a Democrat, but believing his first duty was to his country rather than to his party, and that it was of the greatest importance that only honest men be elected to office, he has always been independent.

Stands for Liberty

WEALTH could not buy, power could not awe, no man or set of men could control this man, to whom liberty is as the very breath to his nostrils.

Is it any wonder that when he offered himself four year as an independent candidate for district attorney of Suffolk County both parties, whose leaders serve one and the same great monster, and the combined power which takes its one from the same source, should unite on one man in order to keep down this mutineer?

But the voters refused to silo their own thinking, and they rather liked the spectacle of a man standing absolutely alone, with clean hands and heart, backed only by his ability, integrity and courage, his faith in himself and in the justness of his cause.

This year it is the same contest on a larger scale, but with a new man on one side and the great money power on the other.

I grant there are many sober citizens who believe Mr. Moran a charlatan and impostor, many believing honestly they have been told so.

How like sheep we are! We will do anything for ourselves but think. We order our own dinners and even have the moral courage to select our own clothes, but when it comes to making up our own minds we wait until we see how our neighbors stand. Our dread of making a mistake also has regard is almost equal to our fear of death.

Type Unto Himself

JOHN B. MORAN is unique, a type unto himself, and it is but natural that he should be misjudged. History alone can properly estimate such men.

If he has "vagaries," then so has President Roosevelt, with his phonetic spelling and new theories of taxation. But he also has, like Roosevelt, some good old-fashioned convictions, as his platform proves.

If he is a trifle autocratic, so was Andrew Jackson.

If he does not always maintain a dignified composure, neither did Abraham Lincoln.

It is true that his bump of reverence is so undeveloped that he had the colossal effrontery to investigate the doings up on Beacon Hill, where criminals are protected by laws made for that express purpose.

We pay the expenses of keeping up that institution. We send our legislators there to protect our interests, and if there is any reason to believe that they have betrayed that trust they should be publicly tried, publicly exonerated or publicly convicted.

We know that corruption has snaked brazenly through the fair halls of our government, laying its serpent touch upon the highest and most trusted. Let us return the honor of our State House from even the breath of suspicion, that its dome of glittering gold may no longer be a mockery to the world the real god of this Commonwealth.

I believe that Governor Guild is an honest, well-meaning man, but he nevertheless represents machine control of party politics. Years ago we could have figured out when his turn would come with the mathematical accuracy that an astronomer forecasts an eclipse of the moon.

Mr. Moran is the immediate choice and the idol of the populace, and if his following is the "mob," as Senator Lodge says, then it has been the "mob," not the cultured, conservative few, which has saved this country on dangerous occasions.

This "mob" in Massachusetts is now thoroughly aroused. You can hear the rumbling from Cape Cod to the Berkshires, and on November 6 it is going to march quietly to the polls and vote for John B. Moran and government "of the people, for the people and by the people."

MISS LILLIAN RUDDICK.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

NOT AN IMPOLITENESS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man, twenty-six years old, and have been engaged to a young lady for the past six months. A short time ago while returning from a matinee, we quarreled over what she considered an act of impoliteness on my part. Now, Miss Fairfax, was I right or wrong in doing as I did?

It was a very rainy afternoon, and the seats in the open cars in which we boarded were wet and almost deserted. We sat down on the wet bench, and the seats in the open cars behind the car, the seat upon which I was sitting was comparatively dry. Now, as there were three vacant seats, and the motorman preferred standing to sitting on the wet bench, I did not feel it my place to offer her any seat. When we alighted from the car, my affianced and I quarreled, she claiming that I should have offered my dry seat.

I love this young lady dearly, and ever since this incident she has acted cool. If I am wrong, I wish to acknowledge my error and endeavor to more the loving companions we have been in the past.

I do not think you were guilty of a rudeness. There were vacant seats and the lady could have taken one of them. I think your fiancee is quarrelling on very small pretext. Of course, if you were occupying such the seat, it would have been polite to have offered it to her, but as I understand it, your seat was no more sheltered than the rest.

A Romance of Love and Mystery

Copyright, 1906, by American Journal Examiner

WE had arranged that Mrs. Williams should cook for us, and present by she came smilingly to say the table, simply, but cleanly. Thus our conversation was interrupted, but when again I returned to the subject, and she said with a serious look:

"Wilfrid, he must not discover me. If he does—if he finds me all is at an end. Even you cannot save me."

"But I fear I may be followed here," I said. "If he knew that we met last night, or he would not have been aware that you were in the house, he would have employed by him, is watching me. I must remain away from you."

"No," she remarked. "I quite foresee the danger, yet I shall be very lonely and besides, what can I say to Mrs. Williams?"

"We'll have to make an excuse that I've been sent into the country to work," I said. "If I come daily here I'm quite certain Winslow will discover you. His knowledge of his regarding our meeting the day before yesterday makes me suspicious."

"You are right," she declared sadly, as he has means of knowing everything. No secret seems safe from that man, Wilfrid. I sometimes think—sometimes I think that—that—not she hesitated.

"That what?"

But she did not reply. She was standing at the window looking out dreamily on the gray, dismal street. The words she had uttered were mechanically, as though she were speaking to herself.

"You told me, Wilfrid, that if I pretended to be your husband I might save you," I remarked gently.

"And so you may, providing Elitee Winslow does not discover me. If he does—then all is useless—quite useless. I shall have compromised myself and placed you in an invidious position, all to no purpose."

"But by discretion—by my remaining away from you, and only coming here by stealth when I know that Winslow is not watchful, I may still remain your husband for years and years before he knows."

"Yes, yes, Wilfrid," she said eagerly, placing her nervous hand upon my shoulder and looking deeply into my eyes, "that he can only know if I myself give him cause to judge. They must not find me.

"Let us have patience—patience always—and we may foil that man's vile intentions. Ah! if you knew everything you would pity me. But you do not. You believe that I held some guilty secret. Yes," she added, hurriedly, "it is a guilty secret, and how can I sufficiently thank you for trusting me so blindly as you do? I am very unworthy. You are the best friend, Wilfrid, that woman ever had. Can you wonder at the suggestion I made to you up at home the other day?" Then she hesitated, still looking me straight in the face. "But you have forgotten me," she went on, with a sigh. "I thought that you loved me still—yes—I was very foolish. All women are so—sometimes—all women who are terrified and unhappy, as I am!" And she burst into tears, and I, moved as she bowed her beautiful head before me.

CHAPTER XII.

In the House of Parham

THAT evening when I returned to Lexington avenue, I found Winslow sitting awaiting me.

Upon his head he had followed me to various places during the afternoon, but his movements were in no way suspicious. At the hotel he had, it appeared, lost all trace of Sibyl, and had probably employed a private detective to watch my movements.

The afternoon papers had been held at Bayside, for in The American there appeared a four-line paragraph saying that the fiance of an unknown man found shot in Tennant Wood a verdict of murder had been returned, and the matter had been left in the hands of the police.

That night we dined with two friends in the Yacht Club, and the next morning at the fortnightly meeting of Inquirers, Society Ethic to act, as he thought best. My presence in London was not to go near my pseudo wife.

My first visit was to the pawnbroker's in Third avenue, to whom I presented the tickets I had found upon the dead man. We had agreed on redeeming them, a cheap silver watch and heavy antique gold ring, to which a single ruby was set.

"You will recollect the gentleman who pledged these, I suppose?" I asked of the pawnbroker.

The young man, a smart, shrewd fellow, looked at them, and answered:

"Well, yes, I do remember something of him. He had a diamond ring with him. He wanted $25 on it, and I wouldn't give more."

"What kind of a fellow was he?" I asked, fearing that I had bought the ticket from a third person.

A New Mystery

"Oh, youngish man with a short brown beard. Evidently a swell who was hard up. We get lots of them in here."

A feeling that I had been shaves and disguised himself before the interview with Childs?

"Tall?" I asked.

"No, not very."

The description did not answer to that of the dead unknown.

"A stranger?"

"Yes, I'd never seen him before. But the truth is I recollect him because that ruby there is a valuable one, and my doubts at the moment as to its genuineness, and as there were a lot of people waiting I had no time to examine it. So I lent him only a couple of dollars on it."

"Then it's worth more?"

"Yes, if you bought the ticket cheap you've got a bargain. The boss here would give you $50 for it, and be pleased."

I looked at it, and saw that it was a very fine stone.

To me it seemed that the man who had pawned the ring and ring could not be the man who had lost his life in Tennant Wood.

"You think he was a gentleman?"

"Well, not quite, if the one and seemed very much afraid of being seen. He kept looking when I asked him his name, so I wrote down the usual one—Green."

"Green?" I said.

"I put that in slap."

So finding I could discover nothing further, I carried away both watch and ring with me, the strange contents of pockets which the dead man's pockets had contained.

Close to the corner of Canal street I met Mrs. Williams with Winslow, dressed sprucely as usual in silk hat and frock coat, and he at once stopped and offered me his hand. Then, after greeting me, he turned on his heel and walked by my side, saying:

"So you're just going back to my rooms. I'll come with you."

"Yes," I replied, "I'm going back to my rooms. I'll come with you."

"I see from the papers that they've discovered nothing regarding that affair in Tennant Woods."

"No," he remarked, in a mechanical tone. "And I don't expect they ever will. The assassin, whoever he was, got away without being seen by any one, and then he cleverly diverted our conversation into a different channel.

I forced to discuss it further. The man was Silby's enemy, and nothing more. He evidently knew that we had met on the evening of my arrival in New York and was actively at work to trace her.

Indeed, when I afterward reflected, I saw that in all probability he had watched me that morning, and had purposely encountered me.

To each other we were outwardly still extremely friendly. I invited him to my rooms that evening to smoke, and he accepted, for he had nothing else to do, while I, on my part, had resolved to watch him closely.

I lunched at the Athletic Club, and though anxious to run down to Rutgers street to see Sibyl, I was obliged to control myself with sending her a telegram saying I had been sent to St. Louis in connection with some new lifestyle machinery and must be absent two or three days. I sent this message that Tibbie might show it to Mrs. Williams.

Soon after 4 o'clock I set forth on another expedition by train from the Grand Central Station to Larchmont, in search of the home of the mysterious John Parham, whose card I had found on the dead man in the woods. The Astoria desk was full, and when I alighted from the express. It is essentially a residence district of the well-to-do, whose pretty homes have not been wholly crowded out by flat buildings. Most of the residences stand back from the street, surrounded by wide lawns and partly shaded trees, giving the avenue quite a syl-van appearance.

SALMON SMOTHERED IN PEAS

HEAT one can of salmon and arrange in a deep dish. Drain the water from one can of peas, pour over them rich milk; add just enough of the liquor from the salmon to make a thick gravy; season with salt and pepper and add to the salmon. Heat the remaining can of peas and pour through a colander over the salmon and gravy. Mix well together and serve at once.

MISS E. B. WATSON.

ITALIAN SPAGHETTI

TAKE one pint of ground steak and three cups of ground tomatoes, three cloves of garlic and put through a chopper; one slice of bread cut one half cup of cracker crumbs, small piece of salt pork, chopped fine; beat two eggs and mix all together. Salt and pepper to taste; make into small balls and fry in two tablespoonfuls of lard until a light brown; then take a quart of tomatoes, two cloves of garlic, a sprig of parsley, salt and pepper to taste; place on the stove and let boil; remove and strain, and when the tomatoes are boiling put in the drippings. It has been fried in, add to the tomatoes, cook until the broth is of the thickness of soft-boiled custard. Cook one pound of spaghetti or macaroni in boiling salted water until tender. Remove from the fire and drain in a colander. Place a layer of spaghetti on a platter, sprinkle with grated cheese, cover with a layer of the sauce, and so on. This is the genuine Italian way to cook this delicious dish.

HOW THE PIANO TRUST

Uses the Good Old Boston Firm Names

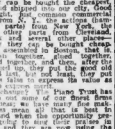
To Get Big Prices for Their Common Commercial Pianos

A few years ago we Bostonians could point with pride to the good old Boston names which stood for everything that meant artistic merit and honest dealing in Piano—for we held that Boston was fortune to have the finest piano makers in the world, men who put their whole souls into their work, and when these men had their names placed on the fronts of their pianos they took pride in the instruments. All our Bostonian friends will remember when we heard those honest names spoken with reverence not only in Boston but all over the country—and to-day—To-day is the day of money and the Piano Trust. The good old Boston names which the Trust cares for is the bright gold dollars that they represent, and that they get from the Trust when it buys the piano.

To you who have been reading our piano statements we want to say do not wish to discredit you in the least, there are still the finest pianos made in Boston, but they are not the ones we refer to here; them with us always, there are pianos which are made for sale on commission, and which are sold entirely on their merits. The names of the men that once made them famous are dead, and the Trust pays for a Piano without a soul, without musical merit, without anything but a name, just as much for a common Piano as for one upon which master MOZART played, and which made the name famous. Now we are speaking to you of the Pianos that a dozen different trade centres of our country, and wherever they go they are sold to the people backed by the ten and fifteen million dollar Trust, and the people pay for them the price of Pianos of the highest grade, the actual value of these pianos, selling, besides the cartage from the factory to the dealer's warerooms in Boston, Philadelphia and several other places—and all place where the Piano Trust exists. These pianos are then assembled in Boston, that is, the cases are made, the actions, keys, hammers and strings put together, and then, after old Boston name is placed on the fall board, it is sent out with a price that is as false to express its value as the name NOW is to express its worth.

Do you see why this Company True Trust has been able to pay dividends of 6 per cent. on $10,000,000 for the past year? Do you see why the Boston firm names for their good will. In fact, they have been the greatest asset the Trust has had. Now that the Trust has practically completed its work of establishing a system of Piano jobbing and manufacturing, we ask you whether you buy of us or not. We would like advice on the matter. Lets us help you protect the public and the honest makers. Read our weekly announcements and inquiries.

3 MONTHS' PIANO LESSONS FREE



When a dozen, two dozen, 50 or 100 fine Pianos, new or second-hand, get, through force of circumstances, to our storage salesrooms, we insert in our auction sale pause tag, and the pianos are sold regardless of price. Not one cent more to us. Not one cent less to the first man or woman with means enough to buy. Lots can be sent on approval if they see fit. No matter what price you pay, the individual.

Below names left, will be sold this week as reduced prices.

THE WORLD'S DISGRACEFUL ATTACK ON MRS. EDDY

It Combined a Good Many Unpleasant Features

It would be interesting to know just exactly why the New York World thought it necessary to make a bitter and untruthful attack upon Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, the respected leader of the believers in Christian Science.

The attack was offensive in a three-fold manner.

It was an attack upon a woman.

It was an attack upon old age.

It was an attack upon religious belief.

It is not necessary to SHARE a religious belief IN ORDER TO RESPECT IT.

It is not necessary to be very much of a man to realize that a woman who has committed no crime should be left in peace, free from bitter, uncalled-for criticism.

And it doesn't take very much manhood in a newspaper editor to realize that a woman eighty-six years of age is entitled to veneration from every man, especially when her life has been exemplary, AND WHEN SHE HAS DONE NO ONE ANY HARM.

We are glad that Mrs. Eddy's good health made it possible for her personally to refute the inexplicable, slanderous attack upon her.

And we trust that the New York World, as far as it is possible, will see fit to confine its attacks to MEN, and, if it must attack WOMEN, that it will at least exempt THOSE PAST FOURSCORE.

Workmen and Business Men Are United

Their Interests as Citizens Are the Same

We have received many letters urging upon us the importance of "appealing to the labor vote."

This newspaper appeals and will continue to appeal TO THE COMMON SENSE OF ALL CITIZENS, WORKINGMEN, BUSINESS MEN, CLERKS AND OTHERS.

There is no question involved in this election that does not interest EVERY citizen. For the one question in the election is this:

Shall the United States and the individual States be governed by trusts, by criminally organized capital? OR SHALL THEY BE GOVERNED BY THE MEN THAT INHABIT THEM?

All honest Americans have the same interests, merchants and workingmen alike.

The workingman is interested in good wages, reasonable hours, and the WHOLE NATION is interested in those same things. Good wages means plenty of money to be spent in the stores, for rent, and in every direction.

Reasonable hours mean better WORK during the working hours, and better, healthier men in the next generation. The child of an overworked man is feeble.

There is no good American who is not interested in the future of his country, just as he is interested in the FUTURE OF HIS CHILD.

The time has gone by when a man in business imagines his interests to be different from those of the mechanic or any other workman.

The prosperity of the entire nation depends upon the SPENDING CAPACITY of the body of the people. The store which thrives here, where the people make money and spend money, would die of starvation in China, where there are a few enormously rich men and a mass of poverty-stricken human beings.

This is not a campaign interesting to workingmen alone or to business men alone, or to any one class.

There is really only one political party in this country, and that is THE GREAT BODY OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE. And that political party, THE AMERICAN PEOPLE AS A WHOLE, is interested in this campaign, which has primarily for its object the suppression of trust rule, the punishment of trust criminality, and the restoration of the governing power to the people to whom it belongs.

A Good Reason Why Peabody Should NOT Be Elected

His Friends Admit That He Prepared the Cambridge Subway Grab Bill

A Boston newspaper—one which may nearly always be depended upon to favor measures that the predatory corporations desire—published an editorial a day or two ago in the interests of W. Rodman Peabody of Cambridge, who wants to be elected Senator next Tuesday.

Mr. Peabody was in the House of Representatives last year. In its attempt to be friendly the editorial had this to say regarding him:

"He was chairman of the committee that prepared the Cambridge Subway Bill."

Among the several very strong reasons why Mr. Peabody should NOT be elected, his corporation friends have supplied the most powerful.

The Cambridge Subway Bill, engineered by the Boston Elevated Railway, was passed by the last Legislature, after a bitter fight, in which the measure was shown to be an unblushing and outrageous steal of $3,000,000 from the people of Cambridge and a bold attempt to sew up the city of Boston to the north in the interests of the Traction Trust.

Mr. Peabody's friends have defined his position as favoring the bill. His opponent should thank them for thus reminding the voters that they have Mr. Peabody more than anyone else (except the Boston Elevated) to thank for the Elevated grab.

If this was not a sufficient reason why Mr. W. Rodman Peabody should be retired to private life by the votes of his fellow-citizens, a strong one would be supplied by the fact that Mr. Peabody was one of the notorious Committee on Rules, which investigated the charges of bribery in secret star chamber session—and SKILFULLY APPLIED THE WHITEWASH BRUSH AND IMMUNITY BATH.

Lodge's Three Weapons--- Guild, Draper and MONEY

You know a good deal about the men that Lodge is using to keep control of Massachusetts.

One of these men is the editor of a State Street newspaper, named Guild. His newspaper is supported by the Banking Trust. And after he goes out of office he will go on working for the trusts as he did before.

The other is the head of a trust. He and his brothers OWN a trust town, in which no union man can live. They have succeeded in reducing their employes to such a state of serfdom that these employes are AFRAID to organize a union in the Draper works.

You also know something about that big sack of money which Lodge's campaign committee is spending at this election. You could not identify the individual dollars, but you know pretty well where they CAME from.

Every time you pay your coal bill you pay money into that sack.

Every time you pay freight to a railroad you pay money into that sack.

When you hang to a strap instead of having a seat YOU PAY FIVE CENTS CLEAR PROFIT INTO THAT BAG.

When you are cheated by any of the innumerable trusts that appear in your household bills, in your rent, YOU ARE CONTRIBUTING SOMETHING TO THAT BIG BAG OF MONEY—FOR ALL THE TRUSTS ARE GIVING MONEY TO LODGE'S CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE TO USE WHERE IT WILL DO THE MOST GOOD.

Do you see the puzzled look on Lodge's face? He is wondering whether he can get you with these three tools of his—GUILD, DRAPER and MONEY.

You realize that YOUR MONEY is going to be used for Guild and Draper. They have got your money, you can't help that.

BUT THEY HAVEN'T GOT YOUR VOTE YET. Are you going to let them have that, too, this time?

THE ISSUE

All the Trusts are lined up AGAINST Moran and Brown.

All the Trusts are lined up FOR Guild and Draper.

Voter, where do YOU Stand?

Friends and Enemies of Overtime Bill

Some Have Been Taken Care of, and It Is Up to Voters to Remember Others

The workingmen and fair-minded people of Massachusetts have not forgotten the men who helped to kill the Overtime Bill.

President Dana of the Senate, who cast the deciding vote, is out of the reach of the indignant electorate. He was appointed by Governor Guild to a seat on the bench.

Samuel E. Hull of Millbury, who opposed the bill, failed of renomination.

Louis S. Cox of Lawrence, who was not present, has been made a postmaster.

Sidney A. Hill of Stoneham, who was not present, did not run for re-election.

John M. Grosvenor of Swampscott, who was not present, tried to run, but the voters cared for him at the caucus. He was not renominated.

The fourth of the Senators who were absent—AND THE WORST INSTANCE OF THE LOT—was Senator Horton H. Hilton of Lowell. At the beck and call of the Boston & Maine lobby he skulked from the Senate chamber on the day the Overtime Bill was marked for defeat.

The honest, truth-loving people and the friends of women and children in his district may be depended upon to see that he gets no farther than to be a candidate. His opponent, John J. McManmon, was FOR the Overtime Bill last year in the House.

There were other Senators in the list of those who participated in the lobby scheme to withhold relief from the women and children, please the mill owners and assist Governor Guild. Some of them—seeing the handwriting—have not run for re-election. Others are again before the voters for their support.

Allan G. Buttrick of Clinton was a firm friend of the lobby throughout the fight on the Overtime Bill. James F. McGovern of Worcester, who is now running against him, has a clean record.

Daniel W. Lane, who helped Guild, Dana and the rest to kill the bill, is running for Congress in Boston. His opponent's record is good.

H. C. Hunter of Marlboro was a bitter opponent of the Overtime Bill, and voted steadily and consistently to help put the deal through. John J. Mitchell of Marlboro, who was FOR the bill in the House and has a good record on all legislation, is now opposing him for election.

There are others to be remembered for what they did on that day, and who will be. Prominent among them are Charles N. Prouty of Spencer, Elmer A. Stevens of Somerville, A. M. Taft of Worcester, C. L. Dean of Maldeu—all of whom were against the bill.

The following men should be elected because they are pledged to support the bill:

Thomas F. Cassidy of Adams, John F. Cusick, Eighth Suffolk District; Daniel D. Mahoney of Chicopee, James J. Mellen of Charlestown, Frederick J. MacLeod of Cambridge, William H. Felker of Northampton; M. F. Phelan of Lynn, Albert Walkley of Marblehead, James A. Cogswell of Rockport, David F. Roche of Haverhill, Edward C. Callahan of Lawrence, William A. Davenport of Greenfield, William P. Hayes of Springfield, John Diggins of Somerville, C. E. Hobbs of Everett, James M. Marden of Medford, John P. Farley of Lowell, T. F. Daly of Holbrook, James M. Lynch of Avon, B. F. Peterson of Whitman, Emmet T. Walls of Brockton; William J. Ferguson of Boston, Edward W. Dixon of Boston, Timothy L. Connolly of Boston, Frank J. Linehan of Boston, William W. Clark of Boston, John E. Walsh of Boston, A. S. Cleaves of Gardner, Arthur E. Seagrave of Uxbridge and William H. Potter of Spencer.

Stevens, Under Fire, Refuses to Debate

After Viewing His Record in the Senate, It Is Not So Difficult to Understand Why

Senator Elmer A. Stevens of Somerville voted against the Overtime Bill, which would have relieved women and children in the factories from enforced night work.

He assisted in the defeat of the Shoe Machinery Lease Bill, which would have broken the monopoly of the Shoe Machinery Trust.

He opposed the peaceful picketing bill.

He opposed the public opinion bill.

Notwithstanding this record Senator Stevens is asking the Somerville electorate to send him back to the Senate for another term.

Representative John Diggins, whose legislative record is good, is Stevens's opponent. He is a young man of twenty-eight, a forceful opposer of every corporation graft bill in the last House. He has challenged Stevens to debate with him—thus far unsuccessfully.

One question that he is asking the present Senator night after night is this:

"Do you think it proper for members of the Senate to visit the offices of corporations when those corporations have bills of vital importance before the Senate?"

To this Senator Stevens has merely replied that when he made such a visit it was in connection with the Cambridge subway bill, and that he was a committee member.

Somerville citizens would prefer more of an answer.

Little Editorials from the People

WHERE THOMAS J. HAWKINS OF EVERETT STANDS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

As a candidate before the citizens of Everett for Representative, I deem it fitting that I should let them know my position on the issues to be voted on November 6.

In the first place, I am what might be called a progressive Democrat—believing and professing principles enunciated by Jefferson, that the principles of true democracy, if lived up to, fit all contingencies that may arise in our political life; that their non-observance or long failure at times to do so may be clearly traced not to any inherent defect in those principles, but rather to corrupt leaders gaining control of the party organization and using it for the selfish ends of themselves and their interested purchasers—those who would use the government for the oppression and expoliation of the masses.

In the career of party government in this country, one thing is especially noticeable: That the Democratic party alone, of all the parties, carries within itself the power to cleanse itself and become in fact, as well as in name, Democratic. These principles have animated me in all my actions since my first vote was cast. If elected, I shall support labor interests at all times, when such interests only when I believe them to be in the interests of the people. No corporation, either single or in combination, will be master. The interests of the people, hitherto so lightly considered by Everett representatives, will have my most hearty support.

As an active trades unionist of thirty-five years' standing, as the founder of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union, the organizer of two local unions of that craft in Boston and ten in other localities, I intend in labor legislation to remain true to my record of thirty-five years.

Governor Moran will need all the help in the Legislature that the people can give him. It is for those who support him and E. Gerry Brown to provide that support.

Where do the voters (mostly wage earners) of Everett stand?

Everett. THOMAS J. HAWKINS.
